Yale Bowl, New Haven, Nov. 22.—Surging through the heavy wash in the huge bowl after an early scare today, Eli Yale's football warriors, bored and sloshed their way to victory over Harvard by a 19 to 6 score.

The outstanding hero of the second successive sea-going tussle was Ducky Pond, whose [illegible] cleats and dripping frame repeatedly tore the Harvard line to pieces.

Harvard got an early jump on the Blue, the soapy ball playing havoc with the scrambling of Bench, Yale quarterback, who fumbled a Gehrke punt. Harvard recovered and Gehrke a few minutes later booted the first points of the game with a seventeen yard field goal.

A few minutes later, another fumble, in the shadow of [illegible] rights, again gave the [illegible] the Crimson.

With Stafford holding the ball, Gherke kicked three more points into the Harvard total, from the 23 yard line.

The first half ended with Harvard leading, 6 to 0, after Yale barely [illegible] a touchdown, surrendering the ball on downs of Harvard's 2 yard line.

The field was a lake when the second half began. Yale showed its real strength, rapidly scoring two [illegible] and [illegible] one of the points.

[illegible]'s fumble at a Yale man [illegible] fumbling for a fair catch, [illegible] way for a march by [illegible] land over the Crimson goal.

[illegible] fumble shortly after the [illegible] kickoff gave Yale the ball [illegible] Harvard's 14-yard line and a few [illegible] scored it again. The attempted [illegible] was blocked but Yale led 13 to [illegible] third period ended.

[illegible] Ducky Pond, hurled [illegible] for his third touchdown in the [illegible] period, after a [illegible] the field, with Kline [illegible] the short carries. The [illegible] and it was Yale 19, Harvard 6.

FIRST PERIOD

[illegible] of Yale kicked off to [illegible], who fumbled and [illegible] the 18-yard line. [illegible] the ball grounding [illegible].

[illegible] yards through right [illegible] made 2 more at centre. [illegible] the ball grounding [illegible] Harvard's 25-yard line. Gehrke kicked [illegible] back to Bench, who was [illegible] Dean on Yale's [illegible] ankle was twisted and [illegible] taken out.

Pond made [illegible] through left [illegible] to Stafford, who was [illegible] by Lovejoy on Harvard's [illegible]. Maher fumbled and [illegible] of Yale recovered on Harvard's [illegible] yard line. Cottle failed to gain and Pond went off right tackle for [illegible] yards.

Cottle made 2 more at left tackle, with fourth down and [illegible] to go. Pond made first down on Harvard's [illegible] yard line. Pond lost a yard on [illegible] pass. Failing, [illegible] Pond made [illegible] at [illegible]. Failing was stopped after [illegible] a yard. Allen failed on a drop kick from the 30 yard line.

Harvard put the ball in play on their own 20-yard line. Gehrke

Braves Field, Nov. 22—Boston College smothered Vermont at Braves Field by a score of 33 to 7.

The Cronin brothers had a big day, Jack running about 15 miles through Vermont in the first half, scoring two touchdowns and helping materially in scoring two more. Vermont scored one touchdown in the third period and threatened to score repeatedly in the last half.

FIRST PERIOD

Vermont won the toss and chose to receive the kick-off. McManus kicked to Cayward, who reached the 25-yard line before he was downed by O'Connell. Yarnell made a yard and on the next play kicked against the wind to Crean on Vermont's 45-yard line. J. Cronin made four yards.

Bill Cronin tore around right end for 25 yards. Ward made 3 and 6 in two rushes. An off-side penalty cost B. C. 5 yards. Ward went through centre for 7 and scored on the next plunge. McManus failed to kick the goal. Score, B. C. 6, Vermont 0.

Harms kicked off for Vermont to B. C.'s five-yard line, from which

LEITER'S HOME IS LOOTED

Beverly, Nov. 22.—Edgewater, the palatial Summer home of Joseph Leiter, Chicago capitalist and former wheat king, was entered by thieves early today and $50,000 worth of choice wines and liquors carried away.

A night watchman in the employ of a burglar protective service is missing, and the police are investigating to learn whether he was overpowered and carried away, or was in league with the robbers.

The robbery was discovered by Percy Husley, the gardener, who was aroused from slumber in a cottage on the estate by the noise of a truck, and got to the window in time to see it disappearing.

Edgewater, one of the show places of the North Shore, is located at Beverly Cove. Its owner, who in 1898 was the largest individual holder of wheat in the history of the grain trade, is at present at his Washington home. Husley was the only servant left on the estate for the Winter months, but the house was guarded each night by a private detective.

The thieves, evidently aware of conditions and that the wine cellar was well stocked, drove to Edgewater in a truck, which they backed up to a cellar door.

A screen and window were forced, as were a number of doors in the cellar, including that to the wine closet, and a rear exit through which the stolen liquor was carried.

When Husley glimpsed the depart-

NOONE FIRES 185 WORKERS

Mayor Thomas A. Noone, defeated candidate for re-election in Revere, today discharged 185 city employes.

The Mayor, who lost the fight in the recent primaries to Dr. John W. Walsh, denied that his defeat had any connection with the wholesale discharges.

He declared it is necessary to remove a number of workers from the city payrolls each year in order to reduce expenses.

Mayor Noone's opponents, however, declared the employes were let go because of the belief that they had voted for Dr. Walsh in the primaries, instead of the incumbent.

They asserted it to be significant that the discharges did not take place until after the primaries, and a short time before the election.

Although Mayor Noone ruled a two to one favorite before the primaries, he was defeated by more than 800 votes by Dr. Walsh, who was known as a reform candidate. The Mayor is serving his second term.

Mayor Noone said that most of those discharged were employed in the highway division and that with the ending of the Summer work on roadways, there was no longer any need for their services

HIGHER GASOLINE PRICES ANNOUNCED BY COAL CO.'S

Motorists are going to pay more for gasoline in Greater Boston. The new price will probably be eighteen cents a gallon.

In a move to bring the price of the fuel back to the level it reached before the drastic cuts were made, four of the seven large distributing agencies announced increases today. The new wholesale or tank-truck price will be fifteen cents a gallon.

The organizations which announced increased prices today were the Standard Oil Company, the Jenney Manufacturing Company, the Tide Water Oil Company and the Colonial Filling Stations.

WIFE DEFENDS TRADING STAMP KING AGAINST GIRL'S CHARGES

SAYS MANICURIST IS TRYING TO PICK 'EASY MONEY'

A young wife's faith in her aged husband was exemplified today when pretty Marion Andrews Caldwell, wife of George B. Caldwell, millionaire trading stamp king, came to his defence and characterized the $300,000 love suit of Miss Zoe Evans, Boston manicurist, as a "plan to capitalize her acquaintances with a wealthy man."

The young wife, at her home in Winsted, Ct., declared that she had entire faith in her millionaire husband, despite any charges that the manicurist may make.

She made it plain to the world that her marital happiness will not be wrecked by the love suit.

SEES "EASY MONEY" SCHEME.

"Perhaps this Evans woman thought she could wreck our happiness," she declared, as her brown eyes flashed angrily.

"If she did, she is wrong. I hope she understands that. I will help my husband in every way in my power to show this woman she cannot brazenly exploit a harmless friendship to make 'easy money.'

"Mr. Caldwell had nothing to do with this woman since we were married. What he knew of her before marriage is his own affair. Most men have several affairs before they marry.

"I am going to court when this case opens. I am going to sit where I can look at this woman. I intend to give my husband every encouragement possible."

She read the reports in the various papers, stamped her foot and declared:

"KIDDING," SAYS CALDWELL.

"It is absurd, this suit."

Mrs. Caldwell was a school teacher at Westbrook, Me., when she met Caldwell. She declares that she loved the millionaire from the first time she met him.

Caldwell apparently isn't upset. Explaining letters sent to Miss Evans, he smilingly remarks:

"Kidding her along; that's all."

But Miss Evans treats the letters seriously—indeed, she's suing Caldwell for $300,000 for breach of promise.

However, Mr. Caldwell insists that the letters contained nothing which justify the legal action, despite the warmth of their terms.

MAYBE THIS ISN'T LOVE!

In one, Mr. Caldwell wrote:

"I love to get letters and I love to answer them promptly, but I would much prefer in this case taking you in my arms and kissing you to sleep. You are so sweet. George just loves you."

In explanation, Caldwell offers this:

"You may call them love letters if you care to," says Caldwell, "but none of them is the type of love letter exchanged between man and wife."

WHAT'S THE MATTER?

Here is an extract from another of the letters:

. . . . "In the evening I took my daughter and niece to see Florence Reed in 'East of Suez.' I thought it was good. It was very convincing as to what true love means and is. My darling, how I long for you, for your sweet kisses, darling little cuddle and everything else you have taught me to love.

"I am leaving for Chicago Tuesday on the Twentieth Century. Certainly wish you were here. I would steal you and take you along. We could have a drawing room and you could live in my arms most of the way. What bliss!"

An extract from another of his alleged letters says:

"I almost sleep with the little picture. What is the matter with me, anyway? Am I losing my mind over you? No, darling, but I have so sweet remembrance and such sweet letters that I am all stirred up. Keep on loving me, darling mine, and I will reciprocate."

Caldwell comments:

"A few endearing terms meant to kid more than anything else."

Another extract says:

"Darling Zoe, do you think we love each other enough to be true to each other. I am going to try to see you on or before the middle of December and will run over or send you money to come here. Your responsive nature and good looks are bothering me more and more. Pardon this hurried not. Love and everything."

Caldwell says:

"A man traveling from town to town meets someone he takes a liking to and naturally takes her out to lunch, dances, etc., and, perhaps, kids her along a bit."

The full text of the letters Miss Evans says the trading stamp man wrote to her follow:

"My friendship with Zoe Evans certainly was not the type which culminates in marriage," he said.

CASUAL ACQUAINTANCE

Caldwell admitted a casual acquaintance with Miss Evans, but, "What of it," he said.

"That was four months before I married my present wife. My business requires frequent trips to Boston and when on such trips I'm generally lonesome and susceptible to chance acquaintances," he continued.

"I chanced upon the woman during a business trip to Boston. She's a manicurist. I'm a traveling man. It was quite natural. But her assertion that I proposed to her isn't true."

Caldwell told of his first meeting with Miss Caldwell, saying:

"I was in Boston on a business trip. While in the barber shop of the Hotel Touraine I met Miss Evans. I was having my nails trimmed and as is customary upon such occasions, she entered into a conversation with me. She asked me what I thought of Boston, what I thought of traveling, how I liked to be alone so long at a time.

TOOK HER TO LUNCH

"We chatted and laughed. After awhile she told me of how lonesome she was at times. I asked her out to lunch. I took her to the Brunswick, dined and danced and pulled out on the midnight train for this city.

"During one of my trips to that city following our chance acquaintance, she invited me to her home on Commonwealth avenue. I accepted the invitation and visited her home. There were always other persons present while we were in the apartment. We were never alone there.

"We became real friends, but friends only. Here's the situation. A man traveling from one city to another meets someone he takes a liking to and keeps her in mind. Having nothing else to do when in that city, he naturally calls on her, takes her to lunch, dances with her and perhaps kids her a bit. That's just what happened in my case.

"I only paid three visits in all to her apartment. She always invited me. On one of these occasions, she wanted to change her dress, so I went along and waited for her.

SENT PHOTOGRAPH

"I sent her my photograph upon request. The picture she sent me I returned. She wrote to me about once a week. She called me 'Dear George,' 'George' and 'Mr. Caldwell.' There were other pet names used, but I can't remember them just now.

"Right now it appears to me that the woman wants some easy money and she has gone to those she believes can get it for her. Well, she's mistaken. I'll fight and I've got everything to fight with. If she has a case, all right, let her go right on and carry it to a finish. She'll have to prove what she says. What has she to show? A few letters from me? Great stuff, they'll make anyone laugh. Why, I had no more intentions of marrying that woman than I have right this minute of flying.

Mr. Caldwell later left New York for Winsted, Ct., where he intends to pass the week-end with his wife.

"I'll fight those fellows representing Zoe Evans in Boston and here until they know they've been in a fight. It isn't a question of the amount of money asked—$300 or $300,000—it's the same to me. It's blackmail, a holdup and attempted robbery in broad daylight—that's all it is."

The letters alleged to have been written by the millionaire to Miss Evans read:

SENDS FLOWERS

"Dearest Zoe—I promised you a line for Saturday. Arrived New York All O. K. on Wednesday a. m. Have been quite busy since. Did you get home all right from the station? Sorry I had to leave you, but shall hope to see you again soon and have more time in Boston and with you.

"I don't know when I have found a sweeter, more affectionate, high class little lady than you. I think of you often and rather long for your love and affection.

"Have asked my florist to have some florist in Boston deliver you some flowers Saturday for your apartment and Sunday company. Will you write me, darling, if you receive this note and the flowers and what they send you, for I want to know if they give you what I order.

"Dear heart, I wish very much I could be there with you. Hope this finds you well and happy.

"Your friend,
"GEORGE B. CALDWELL.

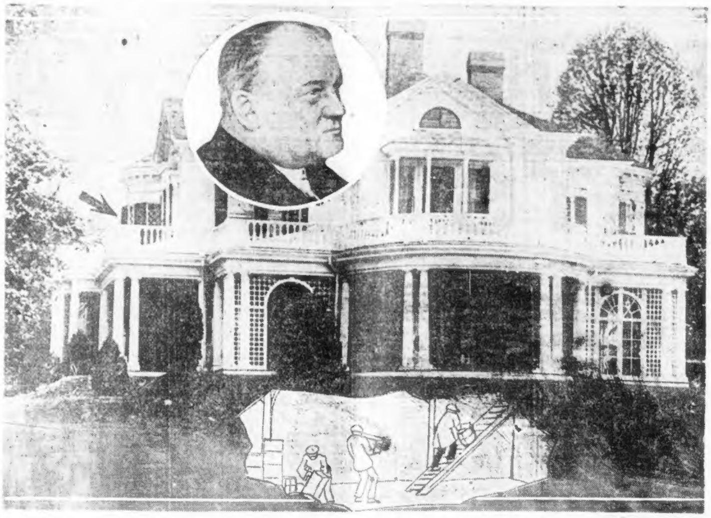
HOW THIEVES RAIDED LEITER'S CELLAR



PALATIAL BEVERLY RESIDENCE LOOTED OF $50,000 IN WINES AND LIQUOR

Despite the fact that Joseph Leiter, former wheat king, hired a special detective to guard his liquor supply, men with a truck got away with it. They entered the house at a window indicated by the arrow, forced other doors until they reached the liquor stores and then carried it away in a truck. What happened to the watchman is a mystery; he has disappeared. Leiter is shown in the inset photo, and the diagram depicts the work of the thieves.

ing truck he telephoned the Beverly police, who rushed a squad of officers to the estate.

A search for the missing watchman revealed a pistol, sweater, vest and cap, which gave rise to the theory he had been overpowered and kidnaped.

Patrolman Henry Slattery, whose route takes him to the vicinity of the Salem bridge, reported he saw a loaded truck crossing the bridge about 6 o'clock. As he had not been notified of the burglary he made no attempt to stop it and did not take the number.

MISSING GIRL, 14, AND MAN ARRESTED

Following an alleged elopment 14-year-old Helen Murray of East Walpole, who has been missing from her home two weeks, and Thomas P. McDonald, 24 years old, of No. 115 Calvary street, Waltham, were arrested in that city today.

The couple were found in a rooming house on Crescent street by Chief Daniel A. Crowley of Walpole and Sergeant Duffy of the Waltham police. Both were taken to Walpole.

The couple deny the police charge that they ran away together. They said they met in Boston after the girl had left home, and went to Waltham together. For one night, they declared, the girl stayed at a hotel and the next day went to a rooming house.

The funeral of Mrs. Rose Campbell, widow of the late Frank Campbell, a well known South Boston business man, and the mother of Francis A. Campbell, clerk of Superior Civil Court, and Joseph A. Campbell, assistant corporation counsel of the city of Boston, was held from her home, No. 4 Mt. Vernon street, Dorchester. A solemn high mass was celebrated in St. Margaret's Church, Columbia road, by the Rev. Father Philip J. O'Donnell, pastor of St. James' Church and a brother-in-law of Francis A. Campbell.

ALONZO B. COOK IS GOVERNOR OF THE STATE

State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook is acting Governor of the Commonwealth, thus realizing the ambition of a lifetime.

Auditor Cook was notified of his "ascension to the throne" by newspaper men.

Governor Cox is in Florida, Lieutenant-Governor Fuller is in Europe, Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook is in Vermont, Treasurer James Jackson is in Baltimore and Attorney-General J. P. Benton is in New York, and in the course of elimination, Auditor Cook has become Governor.

$40,000 for Crooks

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Burglars evaded a net work of electric alarms and made away with goods valued at $40,000 from the ladies' wear shop of Pearlie Powell early today.

Inspectors Hold Up Autos Going to Y.-H. Game

Attleboro, Nov. 22.—Almost a thousand automobiles bound for the Yale-Harvard game in the Yale bowl today were held up by inspectors of the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Headlights, brakes and other equipment were subjected to examinations.

Three arrests were made. One driver was accused of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and two were charged with driving without licenses.

BANDITS SHOOT AT FOOTBALL PARTIES

Clinton, Nov. 22.—A daring attempt by two masked highwaymen to rob autoists, some of them bound for the Harvard and Yale game, was staged on the main auto highway on the outskirts of this city today.

Shots were fired at the intended victims in two of the hold-ups, but the drivers of the cars came through the fusilade of shots unscathed.

Clinton police and members of the State Constabulary scoured the highroad and the other roads in the vicinity of the scenes of the hold-ups, but the highwaymen could not be found.

Harry Joyce, East street, and Dennis Derang, Park street, reported to the police that they had been fired on by masked bandits when they refused to stop on the road between Berlin and Clinton. According to the men, the bandits were poorly dressed.

As the holdup men stepped in the road with levelled revolvers, Joyce, who was driving, speeded up and fled down the road as the shots were fired.

The second attempted holdup was reported by Walter Burke, Summit street.

Burke reported that three masked men stepped from the roadside and attempted to stop him near the Clinton-Sterling line. Burke headed for the men and speeded down the road as two shots rang out.

Police believed that other autoists, some on their way to the big football game at New Haven, also escaped.

CRUISER CONCORD SENT AFTER TUG AND "SUBS"

Key West, Fla., Nov. 22 (I.N.S.)—The new speed cruiser Concord, now off Hampton Roads, has been ordered to the assistance of the tug Umpqua, disabled off Wattling Island, north of Cuba, with submarines 4-23 and R-27 in tow.

The submarines are being brought from Panama for overhauling.

MOTHER OF DON SEITZ DIES IN CONNECTICUT

Cos Cob, Ct., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Rebecca J. Seitz, eight-six, widow of Rev. Josiah A. Seitz and mother of Don C. Seitz of the New York World, died at her home here today.

FOOTBALL RUSH SWAMPS NEW HAVEN LINE

The New Haven Railroad bogged down again today in the face of the tremendous rush of football fans to the Harvard-Yale game at New Haven.

The midnight from New York, due at the South station at 7:38 a. m., reached the Back Bay station half an hour late, and the 150 passengers were forced to disembark.

The trainmen merely announced: "This is as far as we go," and those passengers who had to go intown were forced to pay their fares on the Elevated or take taxis.

The train was then switched into the yards, and held for two hours, with a resultant delay in the delivery of mail from New York, the South and West.

FOOTBALL SPECIALS.

The mixup was due to the running of football specials, of which there were seventeen listed on the time card between 7:20 and 8:30 a. m. These were additional to four specials run to New Haven yesterday. Other thousands of persons went over the road by automobiles.

Today's schedule of specials, all of which were crowded to capacity, was: 7:20 a. m. parlor car special; 7:25 a. m. day coach; 7:30 a. m. parlor car; 7:35 a. m. day coach; 7:40 a. m. parlor car; 7:50 a. m. parlor car; 8 a. m. parlor car; 8:05 a. m. parlor car (B. & A.); 8:10 a. m. "Harvard Limited," for students, in three sections; 8:10 a. m. parlor car; 8:15 a. m. parlor car (B. & A.); 8:20 a. m. parlor car; 8:20 a. m. day coach (B. & A.); 8:30 a. m. day coach.

TORRENT OF HUMANITY.

The exodus to New Haven from Boston and Northern New England began yesterday, but was swelled to a roaring torrent of humanity today.

While the special trains carried many hundreds of eager fans, thousands travelled to the historic Connecticut town in motorcars, some of them starting before daylight.

Special precautionary notices had been sent out some days ago by State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin, and State and local police of Massachusetts and Connecticut were on the alert to prevent accidents.

Motorists had been warned to keep their speed down, to refrain from cutting in on other cars, and to be sure their brakes were in good order.

The rainfall left the roads in slippery condition and much care was required by operators to prevent skidding.

SOVIETS STILL HAVE CHANCE WITH BRITAIN

London, Nov. 22 (I.N.S.).—Unless Soviet Russia attempts further Red propaganda in England, relations between England and Russia are not threatened with rupture, the Foreign Office announced today, following the handing of decisively worded notes to the Russian charge d'affaires.

Negotiations for a new treaty with Russian, to take the place of the trade agreementt abrogated by England yesterday, are not in sight, the Foreign Office added.

On the Air Next Week

WHEN an interfering gentleman fixed things up so that Jiggs' wife agreed to speak to him again, he earned the undying hatred of Jiggs, who had been enjoying the respite while his wife was mum.

Readers of the Boston American depended upon the comics to learn the latest development in the trying effort to Bring Up Father.

Beginning Monday, however, they will be able to learn on the radio how things are going in the turbulent Jiggs family.

Beginning Monday, the popular Boston American comics will be broadcast daily through Station WNAC at 5:30.

The doings of Jiggs, of Abie the Agent, and of Us Boys, as well as other popular figures in the funnies, will be described over the radio.

The hours for broadcasting the news through the Boston American studio of Station WNAC have been changed. After Monday the news will be broadcast at these hours: 11:30, 1:30, 3:30 and 7:30.

REBA, MINE GOLD, HAVE YOU HEARD THE NEWS? WE'RE BEING BROADCAST YET ALREADY!

TODAY

WARREN S. STONE, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, says "thirty or forty big foreign loans will be made in the next year and a half. This will go on until they have drained all the gold from the country, and got most of the suckers' money. Then we will have another period of depression."

THE BIG loans are coming, but they won't take "most of the suckers' money" without the consent of those "suckers." Before you make up your mind to buy foreign bonds ask the big bankers how many of those foreign bonds they have bought for THEMSELVES.

They handle the bonds, take the rakeoff, pass them on to you. Ask the banker that offers them to you if he will guarantee them at their face value or at three-quarters of their face value. He will say NO.

ATOMS OF iron, so small that you wouldn't notice ten thousand of them in the corner of your eye, make a roaring noise as they rush to a magnet held near them.

Scientists of the General Electric Company now have perfected a device that makes the roaring sound audible. If that's possible, may we not some day hear voices of our distant relations on neighboring planets? It isn't impossible. Nothing is impossible that men can imagine.

MRS. HARDING died yesterday, fifteen months after the death of President Harding. Mrs. Harding worked for her husband, lived for him, had a great share in building up his success. Life did not interest her after he died.

THE POST OFFICE has stopped the trade of Prince Hough, a colored man, who ran a prosperous mail order business. He offered, quoting his letter, "to cure you, and make you lucky, and never go broke, and get all the work you can do, borrow all the money you want, run any business you want." All that cost only $21.

IT WAS all right to stop the proceedings of Prince Hough, the voodoo expert. Yet the mere promise, even without fulfillment, seems worth $21.

How many followers of heathen religions, Hindu, Mohammedan, Thibetan, Buddhist, Shintoist, pay several times $21 every year for promises worth no more than those of the Prince Hough?

PROFESSOR LITTAN, who teaches history at Johns Hopkins, says it is an insult to Japan for our navy to organize big manoeuvres in Hawaiian waters.

That's a new step in American timidity, in dealing with our friends in Asia. This country, just now at least, owns Hawaii. The Hawaiian waters are American waters. And the United States ought to have a reasonable interest in the Pacific ocean, which is pretty big.

OUR FRIENDS in Europe, John Bull and others, and our good little brown friend in Japan, must have laughed yesterday to see Uncle Sam firing shells at the battleship Washington, endeavoring, vainly, to sink the great battleship by fire from the guns of the Texas.

You will read this morning in the news columns what luck the flying man had in sinking the big boat. The experiment of dropping bombs from flying machines will at least have some value. The big guns on battleships are out-of-date toys, and it is a disgrace to waste the people's money practicing with them.

IT IS ALSO something of a disgrace to fire from American guns at a battleship named "George Washington." This country ought to leave it to others to fire shells at that name. The authorities also ought to find some cheaper target than an unfinished battleship on which $35,000,000 of the people's money has been spent.

It would have been more polite to George Washington, and more pleasing to the taxpayers, if a government, since it must oblige Europe by destroying its finest ship, had saved the metal in it for "junk."

SINCE THE big boom started on election day, more than thirty million shares of stocks have been sold on New York's stock exchange. Yesterday was another "more than 2,000,000 share day." Some of the operators decided to take their profits. Generally speaking, that's wise. One of the most successful of the Rothschilds said, "I got rich by always selling too soon."

But beware how you sell such a crazy "market" short. When the people are buying more than 2,000,000 shares of stock every day, you can't tell what will happen.

IT TURNS OUT, according to Krassin, just appointed Bolshevik ambassador to France, that England lent $88,000,000 to Russia. Our best minds will deplore this subsidizing of Bolshevism, and building up a government that almost at any moment threatens to haul down the Stars and Stripes and run up the red flag on the Capitol of Washington.

THE BRITISH are not as easily frightened as some American white rabbit statesmen. And, by the way, they will get back their $88,000,000. Don't worry about Great Britain. She has statesmen working for her.

INSURGENT REPUBLICANS WILL BE "PUNISHED"

Washington, Nov. 22.—Representative Longworth of Ohio, Republican floor leader, came out today in favor of restricting the consideration heretofore given insurgent Republicans in the House. Mr. Longworth, who called upon President Coolidge, contended that inasmuch as the Republicans will be held responsible for legislation, the party should take such steps in the organization of the next House as shall prevent hindrance from the insurgent group. He did not outline any specific plan for taking care of the La Follette supporters.

"BIG 3" IN CHINA TO SET UP GOVERNMENT

Peking, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The "Big Three"—General Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian; Feng Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian General," and Tuan Chi-Jui, former Premier of China—approached here today prepared to set up what they hoped would be a unified government of all China.

The fact that the party shifted to Peking was taken as conclusive evidence of agreement in their deliberations. An announcement of the formation of the new government with Tuan as the temporary chief executive is expected.

GORE IS WALLACE'S SUCCESSOR IN CABINET

Washington, Nov. 22.—Howard M. Gore of West Virginia today was appointed Secretary of Agriculture to succeed the late Henry C. Wallace.

Mr. Gore, who has been serving as acting secretary since the death of Mr. Wallace, can serve only until next March 4, when he becomes Governor of his home State.

ROUGHAN CHILDREN ACCUSED OF FRAME-UP TO BREAK WILL

CONSPIRED WITH UNCLE IS CHARGE

Have Forfeited Right to Oppose Bequests, Says Allen's Counsel

Charges that Mrs. Winifred Roughan Guarante and Robert Roughan, her brother, had conspired to break the will of their mother, Mrs. Mary Roughan Allen, were made at the hearing in opposition to a jury trial of the children's suit attacking the validity of Mrs. Roughan's will by Thomas W. Proctor, counsel for Frank J. Allen, administrator and chief beneficiary under the instrument.

Last May, he said, the couple had attempted to make a settlement with their uncle, Michael Kelley, to whom Mrs. Roughan had left $5,000. When making the proposal to Kelley, Proctor said, Guarante told him the action was as good as won as Allen had no money to fight a suit and would settle.

Mr. Proctor went on to say that the children were not entitled to break the will because they had neglected their mother and because they had received their due share of the estate of their father after his death in 1910.

ALLEN IS PRESENT.

Mr. Allen, the young widower proponent of the will, attended the hearing in the law office of Judge McCoole at No. 24 Milk street.

Allen looked more like a young college sophomore than a widower fighting for his late wife's estate.

But he quailed before the heated verbal barrage of Attorney Whipple and his pink-and-white complexion turned dark to crimson from collar to hair-line when Mr. Whipple turned in his direction, pointed a finger straight at his finely-chiseled nose, and almost shouted:

"He deserted a good young girl in Washington, merely for the purpose of carrying out his designs upon this aged woman's property. His whole conduct was mercenary and contemptible.

"Behind her back this young man mimicked Mrs. Allen's walk, made a joke of her feebleness and then babied her and nursed her, perhaps, —made her so that at times she loathed him and the touch of his hands.

PROCTOR CHARGES.

Attorney Proctor, defending Mrs. Roughan's action in cutting off her daughter, Mrs. Winifred Buckley Guarante, and her son, Robert Roughan, said:

"Robert Roughan promised his sister that if her fiance would go through Harvard College he would pay all his expenses, that they might take the place in society to which he and Winifred were entitled.

"Maybe young Buckley tried to comply with Robert's wishes. At any rate, Winifred promised that she would not marry Mr. Buckley without first letting Robert know.

"He learned afterward that the couple had been married three months previous to this promise by Winifred. He became angry and believed that his mother had been a party to the deception. He was estranged from her and that's why she left him only $100."

With respect to Winifred Buckley Guarante, and the failure of her mother to leave her a substantial portion of her wealth, Mr. Proctor said:

"Winifred Buckley Guarante is likewise in possession of a large fortune. But it is susceptible of proof that she failed to act toward her mother as a daughter should.

ANGRY AT DAUGHTER.

"It has been said by a person close to Mrs. Roughan Allen before her death that she remarked on an occasion: 'What do you think of a daughter that will not kiss her father?'

"She married against her mother's wishes in 1915, long before Mrs. Roughan met Mr. Allen.

"And when Mrs. Roughan was ill in bed and sent for her daughter the latter replied that she would have to consult her husband about it and that when a person urged upon the daughter and her husband that she should visit her mother, that person was told: 'Shut up you old fool, we haven't time.'

Mr. Proctor described how the huge fortunes left by James Roughan, the one-time laborer, who rose to affluence without display or ostentation, and by his brother Michael, and his son George.

He said that James Ropghan, when he died, left a fortune of $821,000.

In all, he said, Winifred Buckley Guarante had been left the sum of $400,199.93 and that her brother, Robert, received the sum of about $128,000, placing them both in the class of the very wealthy.

He stated that Mrs. Roughan's share of the money left by her son, George, amounted to about $170,000.

He said that Winifred had been left $12,000 worth of jewelry, furs, clothing, rugs, etc., by Mrs. Allen in her last will.

To the charge of Mr. Whipple that Mr. Allen had given his elderly wife gin and ginger ale during her last days, Attorney Proctor answered that the stimulant was administered by orders of her physician.

Beacon Hill All Stirred Up Over Woman Cat Catcher's Activities

MISS DOROTHY SHELDON AT WORK

But Miss Sheldon Only Rescues Homeless Ones, the League Explains

Beacon Hill is up in arms over a cat catcher.

Fond families of the pampered pussies in Boston's most aristocratic district accuse Miss Dorothy Sheldon of the Animal Rescue League of stealing their pets.

Miss Sheldon does collect cats. She is head of the cat department of the Animal Rescue League.

Beacon Hill has confused her duties with the cruelties of the old-fashioned dog catcher, who delighted in gathering new convicts for the pound. They accuse Miss Sheldon of stealing up at midnight and grabbing their flossy felines.

In response to telephone calls lodging this complaint, the Animal Rescue League explained that while Miss Sheldon does search for cats it is not at midnight nor on Beacon Hill.

IN ALLEYS AND BYWAYS.

Pussies who have been deprived of their daily exercise for fear of the kidnaper may be allowed on the street with perfect safety, the Rescue League states.

Not at midnight but early in the morning Miss Sheldon starts on her round. She is on the road about the time the janitors are emptying the ash cans. She may have been seen on Beacon Hill, but more often she goes to Chinatown or the alleyways of the North End.

Only vagrant cats are taken to the Rescue League; the ones which have slept in the park, or someone's back alley; which haven't had a square meal for days and which are glad of the chance to be taken in anywhere. Janitors and neighbors usually know the stray cats.

Diseased animals have to be done away with. They are never killed unless condemned b ythe veterinary.

SHUNS SCENTED ONES.

The healthy strays are kept at the Rescue League, fed and cared for, until the owners who lost them or new owners appear.

But a fluffy Persian cat, subtly scented with daily baths, would immediately distinguish a Beacon Hill beauty from a back alley vagrant. Such pussies are never seen at the Rescue League's public lodgings.

Miss Sheldon's only interest is to help the unfortunates. She has always loved animals and expects to give the rest of her lift to Rescue League work.

A. F. OF L. IN NEW CAMPAIGN ON ENGINEERS

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 22 (I.N.S.).—The boycott committee of the American Federation of Labor today brought to the convention floor a compromise resolution for that premanding that W. S. Stone, chief of the locomotive engineers, be censured by organized labor.

The compromise charges that Stone is employing non-union men, evicting miners and paying less than the union scale, but urged that instead of censuring Stone the executive council begin negotiations to have the engineers sign a union wage agreement.

Should an agreement not be reached, the Federation would be virtually inviting a boycott upon all activities in which the Brotherhood is interested—mines, banks and investment companies—labor chiefs pointed out.

Mine leaders said that adoption of the resolution would place the full strength of the Federation squarely behind their fight and help materially in forcing their demands upon the engineers.

FAKERS ARE ROBBING OWNERS OF AUTOS

Washington, Nov. 22.—A warning to guard themselves against "fly by night" concerns engaged in selling meaningless "service" contracts and against fake insurance and motor organizations was issued today to motorists throughout the country by Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association.

Mr. Henry said the association's investigators had found more than fifty fraudulent organizations operating in various parts of the country, selling "every conceivable kind of service, from accident insurance to discount privileges at hotels" to "gullible car owners."

M'MILLAN TO HARNESS THE NORTHERN LIGHTS

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 22.—Directly under the northern lights where their shifting brilliance fills the air with a sound he likens to faint rustling of silk or crackling of tissue paper, Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, will establish next Summer a permanent scientific station where he hopes to discover what the aurora is and how it can be harnessed to service civilization, he said today at Oswego.

THRONG PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE CARDINAL LOGUE

Armagh, Ireland, Nov. 22.—A great crowd filed today through Armagh Cathedral where the body of the late Cardinal Logue is lying in state watched over by a special guard of honor detailed by the Ulster Catholic Club. Additional messages of sympathy included cablegrams from Archbishop O'Doherty of Manila and Bishop Cantwell of Los Angeles.

GIRL PLUNGES FROM SENATE BUILDING

Washington, Nov. 22.—A passerby at the Senate Office Building today saw a young woman come hurtling through a window and plunge fifteen feet to the pavement. She suffered a compound fracture of the leg. She refused to give her name.

Those who witnessed the plunge said a man's face appeared at the window and that the young woman exclaimed: "Oh, why did he make me jump?"

A man arrested later was identified as John C. Dugan, an employe in the building. The young woman jumped from a window of the office of Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin. The Senator is not in the city.

The young woman, it was said, tried to get out of the window when the knock of a Capitol policeman was heard on the door. Dugan was released on bail.

LINER AND SCHOONER CRASH IN DENSE FOG

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 22.—A radiogram to the Norfolk coast guard headquarters today from the steamer Montgomery of the Ocean Steamship Company's line bound from Savannah to New York, said that at 1 a. m., thirty-two miles southeast of Diamond Shoals lightship, N. C., the steamer hit an unknown schooner in a dense fog and rain. The latter's bow was smashed.

The Montgomery last saw the sailing vessel at 3 a. m., twenty-two miles south-southwest of Diamond Shoals lightship. She was unable to stand by longer because of her own damaged condition and so proceeded northward.

BELDING ASKS PROBE OF YACHT HOLDUP

Miami, Fla., Nov. 22 (I.N.S.).—M. M. Belding, silk manufacturer, whose pleasure cruiser The Cocoon is said to have been fired upon by a government rum chaser, today said he was preparing to bring about an investigation. The shots from a one-pounder are said to have been fired as The Cocoon was entering the government cut at Biscayne Bay after a trial cruise. Following search of the craft a Federal officer is said to have expressed regrets.

BRITISH TELL EGYPT TO APOLOGIZE

Cairo, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A British note handed to Zagloue Pasha, the Egyptian premier today, demands "proper apology" in connection with the killing of Major General Sir Lee Stack, the Sirdar, and an indemnity of 500,000 pounds sterling.

The note also demands the prohibition of political demonstrations and the withdrawal of Egyptian officers and units from the Sudan, the Sudanese troops to come under the control of the Sudan government proper.

London, Nov. 22.—A battalion of East Lancashire troops has been ordered from Malta to Egypt as impressive funeral services were being held in Cairo today for Sir Lee Stack, according to a News Agency dispatch received from Malta.

While no official information is forthcoming regarding naval movements in connection with the Egyptian crisis it is known that several vessels have been ordered to be in readiness. The battleship valiant is at Alexandria, the second destroyer Flotilla is in Egyptian waters and several ships of the Mediterranean fleet at Dragomestre Bay, Greece, will easily be available.

Rumors are current that artillery will be sent to Egypt with the East Lancashire regiment.

FRIENDS JOIN SEARCH FOR WOLLASTON MAN

His fellow Masons are taking part in the search for John L. MacVicar of No. 128 Phillips street, Wollaston, who disappeared on the morning of November 18.

The missing man was chief engineer of the power plant at the Fore River ship yard. He had been depressed for some time, members of his family say.

MacVicar has a sandy complexion, strong features, a thin face with nostrils slightly turned up and he walks with a noticeable stoop. He is fifty-four years old, weighs 145 pounds and is about 5 feet 9 inches tall.

WEST END MAN HELD FOR POSSESSING FAKE BILLS

With more than $4,500 in spurious $10 bills already passed in Greater Boston, particularly in East Boston and the West End, police headquarters investigators began a determined effort to trace the flood of counterfeits to their source.

Alfonso Repucci, twenty-one, of Cambridge street, West End, in this country only four years, already is held in $10,000 bail at Charless street jail charged with the possession of a number of the counterfeits. Although he resembles the description of a young man who has been passing the fraudulent notes on small store keepers for several days, police believe he is only a minor factor in the plot.

PASTOR'S WIFE DIED OUTSIDE OF FURNACE

Chemist's Tests Show Woman Lifeless Before Body Entered Firebox

Columbus, O., Nov. 22.—A preliminary report of an analytical chemist that Addie Sheatsley, whose practically cremated body was found in the furnace of the Christ Lutheran Church parsonage, in Bexley, by her husband, the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, was dead when she entered the fire chamber, today caused County Prosecutor John R. King to renew his investigation.

Absence of any trace of carbon monoxide poisoning in blood taken from the lungs of the victim, Chemist C. F. Long said, resulted in his conclusions that she had ceased to breathe before her body entered the chamber.

Mr. Long said both lungs revealed intense congestion, indicating either strangulation or suffocation. No trace of soot or ash dust was found in the lungs, he said.

Examination of a section of the stomach wall and a bit of the aesophagus for poison resulted in negative findings," he asserted. A bottle of poison, authorities say, is missing from the Sheatsley home.

Mr. Sheatsley, informed at Paris, O., in a telephone conversation, of the chemist's findings, said: "It's up to Prosecutor King to act. I am glad of any information that may be found. I cannot say anything for it and I cannot say anything against it."

On Wednesday the minister told the prosecutor he had come to the conclusion his wife committed suicide by casting herself into the furnace after she had become violently insane. During his examination Tuesday Mr. King said the minister expressed the conviction his wife had been murdered.

GOVERNMENT WARNS OF RIPE OLIVE DANGER

Washington, Nov. 22.—Three outbreaks of botulism, due to canned ripe olives, reported to the Department of Agriculture early this year, caused the government to make a searching resurvey this Summer of the ripe olive situation, it was disclosed today when the findings became public.

"The investigation furnished no ground for attributing special danger to the consumption of ripe olives, if reasonable care is exercised to exclude spoiled products from sale or use," the report said.

"But the finding of considerable quantities of spoiled material, scattered widely throughout the country and representing many producers, necessitate the exercise of great caution in the avoidance of unfit material."

17 ARE INDICTED BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Providence, Nov. 22.—Twenty-three indictments including two secret bills, were returned by the Federal Grand Jury in this city in a partial report. Seventeen are charged with violation of the Harrison Narcotic Act.

Abbie E. Brownell, for more than twenty-six years a clerk in the Olneyville Branch Postoffice, was indicted for embezzlement of funds passing through the mails. James W. Gilbert and August Sylvia were charged with violating the counterfeit law. The jury threw out the case of Peter Kwaitowska, who had been accused of smuggling aliens into the United States.

SON OF WILLIAM REID IS JAILED FOR 12 MONTHS

St. John's, N. F., Nov. 22.—Leonard Reid, son of the late Sir William Reid, Newfoundland industrial leader, was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment.

He was driving his automobile along a straight, moon-lighted road when he ran into a group of fourteen veterans. Two were killed.

The Reid machine then swerved down an embankment, killing four of its eight occupants.

SICK MAN INJURED ON TRIP TO HOSPITAL

Matthew Maraghy of No. 10 Ludlow street, Charlestown, started to take Edwin Hughes, forty-four years old, of the same address, to the Massachusetts General Hospital in his automobile today. As he swung into Fruit street, about 100 yards from the hospital, his machine collided with a car operated by Frederick T. Williams of No. 18 Wisconsin avenue, Somerville. Both cars were damaged but the sick man Hughes was the only person injured.

SPAIN AND MOROCCO TO END LONG CONFLICT

London, Nov. 22 (I.N.S.).—Spain's conflict in Morocco, now in its thirty-first year, is near an end, according to private advices received today by the London Daily Mail.

As a result of negotiations with Abdel Krim, leader of the Riff tribesmen, the Spanish authorities will sign an armistice with the tribes as soon as the Spanish troops have retired beyond certain agreed lines, the advices said.

Heads Newman Club

BEATRICE CLUGSTON

Waynesboro, Pa., girl, who as president of the Catholic organization at Simmons College, had general charge of the annual dance at the Hotel Beaconsfield. Assisting were May Toner, '26, of Brookline, chairman; Vivian Marr, '26, of Newburyport, Dorothy Rae, '26, of Worcester, and Miss Geraldine McDowell, '27, of Greensboro, N. C.

SUSPECT FOUL PLAY IN WEST END DEATH

Police are trying to determine whether an unidentified man found in a doorway at No. 45 Lowell street, West End, came to his death through foul play or died from natural causes.

The man was discovered unconscious, huddled in the doorway and police sent him to the Relief Hospital, where he died.

There were no marks of violence on the body, and the report of Associate Medical Examiner Walters, who performed an autopsy, is expected to shed light on the case.

The victim was about fifty years old, five feet eight inches tall, and weighed 170 pounds. He was of dark complexion.

The clothing worn by the unidentified man included a gray checked suit, brown woolen shirt, purple tie, black overcoat, black shoes and socks.

SILK STOCKINGS MAKE GIRLS QUIT SCHOOL

Go to Work at 14 to Earn the Money for Finery, Superintendent Reports

The lure of silk stockings and other finery is responsible for girls between the ages of fourteen and sixteen leaving school and going to work, in the opinion of John P. Scully, superintendent of the Brockton schools.

Mr. Scully discussed various phases of compulsory education at a meeting of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs in Pilgrim Hall. Other speakers included four members of a committee of seven school superintendents organized with the approval of the State Department of Education to make a survey of the movement to raise the school age in this State from fourteen to sixteen.

The Brockton superintendent asserted that 45,000 employment certificates were issued last year for the 32,000 children between these, indicating that the average boy and girl held between one and one and one-third jobs a year.

"Many girls are attracted," he said, "by the way the women in the stores dress. There isn't much to it, but it costs a good deal. The schoolgirls see the silk stockings, the bare knees and the rouge and they realize that the only way they, too, can have these things is by going to work and earning the money to pay for them."

About 40 per cent. of the children leave school from economic necessity, said Mr. Scully, and another 40 per cent. leave from dislike of intellectual work.

RENO DIVORCES ARE LEGAL, RULES JUDGE

Reno, Nev., Nov. 22.—District Judge George A. Bartlett has upheld the constitutionality of Nevada's law requiring a six months' residence in the State before suit for divorce may be filed.

The decision has allayed fears of thousands of divorced couples that their separations might be declared illegal.

Judge Bartlett held that the law was satisfied with "actual physical presence within the State for the required period." The fact that persons who have secured divorces here "remove to other places at the conclusion of the controversy is not sufficient of itself to warrant setting aside the decree," the jurist stated.

REFORM LAYS GRIP ON SPICY REVUE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WHILE it may not be held up as good Sabbath entertainment, or even taken as judicious fare for children, "Artists and Models" will move into the Shubert on Monday with the full endorsement of those who offically have our morals in charge. This suggests that reform and refinement have managed to catch up with "Artists and Models," somewhere between its departure from New York and its arrival in Boston. A year ago, when this revue tickled the ear and delighted the eye of out-of-town buyers in New York, Manhattan purists were tearing their hair in anguish and demanding Winter woolens for the frisking damsels who made up the best part of the show. Things were extremely negligee on the Winter Garden stage.

* * *

ONCE out of New York, however, with nothing ahead but way stations, many sartorial extras began to envelop the ladies of the chorus. An engagement in Philadelphia, where General Butler, late of the marines, sits in judgment on public morals, found everybody so completely robed that the general, who likes to press things when given half a chance, had nothing more deadly on his hands than office routine. "Artists and Models" may have shocked the sensitive New Yorker, but nothing of the kind happened in Philadelphia. On no less an authority than Mr. John M. Casey, our own professor of refinement in the theatre, "Artists and Models" will be found as pure as baking powder. He gave the show a first-class, intimate examination just before it left New York. He turned a hard and penetrating eye into every corner and discovered nothing but the utmost in propriety. Purity and refinement was the watchword back of the curtain line and, dumbfounded, Mr. Casey plodded a weary step homeward. Somebody had been spoofing—it was no show at all to raise the wrath of an official censor. At least, not the Boston edition.

WALTER HAMPDEN is finishing his first week in "Cyrano De Bergerac" at the Boston Opera House. It may be that he is wondering what has become of Boston's widely advertised culture—the culture that rushes madly to the support of the finer things of the stage and the music platform. Mr. Hampden must feel, although he has uttered not a word on the subject, that culture is fleeting in this end of the nation. Worse than that—it has fled. Unfortunate conditions of weather, season and location may have had their effect upon Mr. Hampden's box office during the past six days, for some good reason must be advanced in explanation of the apparently departing local interest in ambitious and highly perfected dramatic works. In other cities "Cyrano De Bergerac" has set up new high records in attendance and receipts; in Boston Mr. Hampden is establishing a new low record. It's a long jump from $35,000 a week in Philadelphia to barely half that on the opening week in Boston. Mr. Hampden deserves a better fate, for he represents a phase of theatrical effort that is sadly underplayed. Himself a Harvard man, he brings intelligence and culture to the stage, and he may honestly speak of his art, for his exploits are artistic. He has no interest in the small, frivolous ventures that yield profit and nothing else. Whether Mr. Hampden is a great actor or just a player of ordinary gifts is of small consequence, because in any event he gives a full measure of his own talent and faithful effort to undertakings vitally needed in these days of dramatic froth and nonsense.

THE return of the Park Theatre to the local group known as playhouses of the first class gives the Erlanger interests its only small and intimate theatre. In other days, before an expanding film industry snatched the Park from Rich, Frohman and Harris, it was known as the theatre of long runs. For more than forty-five years this playhouse has been the home of the theatrical muse, and in the years immediately preceding its flight into pictures there were seldom housed more than six plays during a season. When we were little boys—and even before that—extended runs were the rule at the Park. Neil Burgess, in "The County Fair," occupied the stage for a season, and there is still some doubt whether the phenomenal run of William Hodge in "The Man From Home" equalled the Burgess record at this house. Under the Erlanger management it will be noted that the theatre is called the New Park, but to those playgoers who are tripping through the fifties, and who carry happy recollections of the past, it will remain the good old Park. Decorators have brought the theatre up to the best standards of modern playhouses. The rejuvenation is complete. The opening attraction, arriving on Monday, will be Elsie Ferguson in "Carnival."

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

MAJESTIC—Marion Davies in "Janice Meredith." Adapted from Paul Leicester Ford's stirring romance of the American Revolution. Miss Davies is said to reach new heights of artistic achievement as the fascinating Janice. Brilliant supporting cast includes Maclyn Arbuckle, Harrison Ford, Holbrook Blinn, Joseph Kilgour, Will C. Fields and Tyrone Power. A Cosmopolitan picture.

* * *

NEW PARK—Elsie Ferguson in "Carnival." Marks the reopening of this house under the A. L. Erlanger management. The play is a modern comedy by Ferenc Molnar, whose "Liliom" aroused both critics and public a season or two ago. Translation by Melville Baker. In the supporting cast are Tom Nesbit, Burton Churchill, Nicholas Joy, Madeline Delmar and Edith Harding Brown.

* * *

SHUBERT—"Artists and Models." Musical revue, put together after the fashion of such things, with girls crowding the stage. There is a Jean Schwartz score to keep the melody moving, and twenty-four scenes with sketches written by foremost authors and illustrators. In the cast are many comedians, and "fifty sisters of the studio." Produced by the Shuberts.

* * *

TREMONT TEMPLE—"Barbara Frietchie." Picturization of the famous Clyde Fitch play, featuring Florence Vidor and Edmund Lowe. Thrilling, romantic drama of Civil War days in Maryland. In the supporting cast are Emmett King, Joe Bennett, Charles Delaney and Louise Fitzroy. Directed by Lambert Hillyer.

* * *

FENWAY—(Starting today.) Betty Compson in "The Garden of Weeds." Love-drama adapted from stage play by Leon Gordon and Doris Marquette. Supporting Miss Compson are Rockcliffe Fellows, Warner Baxter, Charles Ogle, William Austin and Lucille Thornton. A Paramount picture, directed by James Cruze. Other screen and stage features.

* * *

COPLEY—"Captain Applejack," a burlesque melodrama by Walter Hackett. Tells the dream story of a valiant captain and his pirate crew; with hair raising situations and rich comedy. Mr. Clive will appear in the title role.

* * *

SOMERVILLE—(Stock) "Sis Hopkins." Rural comedy, with Mary Ann Dentler appearing in the title role. An added feature will be the "Down East Quartet."

* * *

ST. JAMES—(Stock.) "The Old Homestead." Play made famous by Denman Thompson. Story of rural New England, with a dash of New York thrown in. Louis Leon Hall will play Uncle Josh.

Noted French Actress to Try Art on Hub

Germaine Rouer.

Germaine Rouer is one of the leading actresses of the Theatre National de l'Odeon of France, which is now appearing in America by invitation of the United States government and will come to the Boston Opera House on Monday, December 1, with its famous actor and director, Firmin Gemier. Mlle Rouer was a student at the French Conservatoire of Dramatic Art, where she won first prize in tragedy and second prize in comedy. She made her debut at the Odeon in Paris, where she has acted for the last six years in modern and classic drama.

This Director Furnishes Own Swimming Pool

The swimming pool at the home of James Cruze, the man who made "The Covered Wagon," is the latest "location" discovered by the astute explorers from the Paramount studio in Hollywood.

The pool and its surrounding grounds figure largely in "The Garden of Weeds," which starts today at the Fenway.

Studio explorers, technically known as "location hunters," are constantly on the watch for beautiful homes or unusual scenic spots which might be used in pictures. One of these discovered Cruze's pool, and when he decided he would need a beautiful swimming pool for the picture, he said:

"Go home!"

Cruze did. The entire company went with him.

Stage Is Safe for Girls, Says Mrs. Hibbard

Mrs. G. A. Hibbard

"There is no safer career for a young girl than one on the stage. Any girl who goes into business or professional life will have many problems to face, and, of course, they are found in the theatre, but in no greater proportion." This is the credo of Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, widow of the late George A. Hibbard, once mayor of Boston. Mrs. Hibbard is doing her part in "The Potters" at the Plymouth.

"As a mother, with the experience of raising a family and knowning these problems, I know whereof and whatof I speak," reminded Mrs. Hibbard.

Burlesque Melodrama to Test Mr. Clive's Art

A departure into the fields of burlesque melodrama will be undertaken by E. E. Clive's band of Copley players next week, when Walter Hackett's "Captain Applejack" will be given.

The play will have an unusual interest by reason of the fact that Mr. Clive will be seen in the stellar role, a big part, and quite the most ambitious role he has essayed since assuming the management of the Copley. The part of Ambrose Applejack is one that brings to the fore all the art which Mr. Clive possesses and as he has a keen sense of comedy this part will afford him an unusual opportunity.

WHAT'S WHAT WITH SHOWS REMAINING

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

Walter Hampden in "Cyrano De Bergerac" at the Boston Opera House. (Second week.) An impressive performance.

* * *

"Saint Joan," with Julia Arthur, at the Tremont. (Fourth week.) In which Shaw tells a story of maidenly heroism.

* * *

"The Nervous Wreck" at the Hollis. (Fourth week.) Otto Kruger presents the funny side of chronic invalidism.

* * *

"The Potters" at the Plymouth. (Fourth week.) If you cannot get a laugh out of this you're hopeless.

* * *

Julia Sanderson in "Moonlight" at the Wilbur. (Fifth week.) Lively music and nimble toes, to say nothing of the comedy.

* * *

William Hodge in "For All of Us" at the Selwyn. (Ninth week.) Good and safe remedy for anything that ails you.

* * *

Fred Stone in "Stepping Stones" at the Colonial. (Eighth week.) Something of a Stone family reunion, with music on the side.

Traces Skill in Acting to Legitimate Stage

Gertrude Short, who enacts the role of "Sue Royce" in the romantic feature, "Barbara Frietchie," at Tremont Temple next week, is another screen player whose growing success may be traced to experience on the legitimate stage. Born in Cincinnati in 1901, Miss Short had her first stage experience when she was only five years old with Nance O'Neil in "Golden Fleece." Subsequently she was with Thomas Jefferson in vaudeville and Mary Mannering in stock. She began her silver sheet work with Edison productions and has appeared in Vitagraph, Universal, Paramount, Robertson-Cole and Metro productions for a number of years.

BEINHORN RECITAL

A famous cantor from the Old World, S. Beinhorn, who has just arrived in this country from Kishinev, will give a concert for the benefit of the Educational Alliance under the auspices of the Toras Moscha Congregation, Harold and Herreshoff streets, Roxbury, tomorrow evening. Mr. Beinhorn is also announced to sing at the Boston Opera House on Saturday, December 27th.

LOST ITALITAN SYMPHONY REVIVED

The novelty on yesterday's Symphony program was composed about one hundred and fifty years ago. The piece was Boccherini's Symphony in C major, played for the first time in Boston.

Until very recently the only thing that had apparently survived from this Italian's numerous works was the celebrated "Minuet." It was good to heard something else of his, not only for the change, but also because this Symphony was worth the hearing.

It has a virtue which is rare these days—brevity. The slow movement is a beautiful song, and the last movement has an unusually short and surprising cadence at the close. There is a good deal of solo work for various instruments. The work was beautifully rendered at yesterday's concert.

Mr. Koussevitzky gave a remarkable performance of Debussy's "La Mer." Whatever one might think of the musical impressionism that this group of pieces stands for, even the most conservative listener must have been impressed yesterday by the beauty of the music as presented by the conductor.

A climax sounds dramatic, no matter how often you may have heard it under another conductor before. A pianissimo sounds pianissimo, and is miles apart from a fortissimo, according to Mr. Koussevitzky, which is as it should be. The applause after the Debussy pieces was very long, and the conductor called on the orchestra to share it with him.

The concert will be repeated tonight.

English Girl First Aid In Ballet Russe

Hilda Butsova.

When Pavlowa presents her Ballet Russe at the Boston Opera House beginning Tuesday evening, December 2nd, one of the most vivacious and talented of the assisting artists will be Mlle. Hilda Butsova, premier classique of the ballet. Mlle. Butsova, in spite of her Slavic name, is a golden-haired English girl, hailing from Nottingham. She entered Pavlowa's company as a ballet girl twelve years ago, and has travelled all over the world with the dancer.

Butsova will have a prominent place on the Pavlowa program when the famous dancer comes to the Boston Opera House on December 2nd.

Sascha Beaumont Does Little of Everything

Sascha Beaumont, who plays one of the principal roles in "Moonlight" at the Wilbur and who also dances so exquisitely, has a peculiar classification in the profession. Most performers are known as singers, dancers or actors, but she does not know what she is.

It was by accident that she became a dancer, by inclination that she took to the stage, and by choice that she studied to become a dramatic performer. When a child, she was an apt subject for artists, and up to the time she was sixteen years old she had posed for most of the well-known artists in New York. She then decided she wanted to go on the stage and through a friend she was introduced to May Irwin, who put her in the chorus, but after the first rehearsal, Edward MacGregor, who was directing the show, decided Miss Beaumont was a dancer. And she made good.

Rachmaninoff Will Show Varied Program

S. Rachmaninoff.

Sergei Rachmaninoff will give a recital in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon. His program will include Bach-Liszt's Organ Prelude and Fugue, A minor; Bach's Prelude, D-minor, from "Well Tempered Clavichord"; Liszt's Sonata, B-minor; Scherzo, Etude, E-minor, Ballads, and Etude, C-minor by Chopin; Rachmaninoff's Prelude, G-major, Etude Tableu, D major, Prelude, G-flat major, and Strauss-Godowsky's Valse, "Kunstlerleben."

Only Amber Beads—But They're 200 Years Old

To be the owner of a family heirloom which has been in the possession of ancestors for over 200 years is the proud distinction enjoyed by Helen Flint, now playing with William Hodge in "For All of Us," at the Selwyn.

The relic is in the form of amber beads which through age have become colored a rare, rich, brown never secured in amber except through age. The ancestors of Miss Flint's family secured these specimens from the rocks in the North and German Sea Islands. Miss Flint says that she has traced the history of the beads in her family for more than 200 years back. They were handed down by the feminine members of the family, one to another.

Theatrical Ball by Stage Hands

Always on the alert, the organized stage hands at the local theatres will conduct a theatrical ball at Mechanics Building on January 22nd. Fred Dempsey is steering things.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Resumes Business in the Old Way

Tyhe old Park Theatre becomes the New Park on Monday, with A. L. Erlanger sitting on the top of things. Dennis Shea, famed for his Irish ballads, will be both house manager and publicity director.

DAVIES FILM COMES TO MAJESTIC

"Janice Meredith" to Have Spectacular Public Opening

Marion Davies, in "Janice Meredith," a screen epic of the American Revolution, adapted by Lillie Hayward from Paul Leicester Ford's story of the same name, will come to the Majestic Theatre on Monday night.

"Janice Meredith" embraces the entire Revolutionary era from 1775 to 17 [illegible] important scenes in the making of this Nation as the Boston Tea Party, Paul Revere's Ride, the Battle of Lexington, Patrick Henry's speech, the Crossing of the Delaware and the Battle of Yorktown and surrender of the British are most faithfully re-enacted in this picture.

More than seven months were required in the making of "Janice Meredith." Six of the largest studios in the East were in continuous use, day and night, for the filming of the picture. Numerous scenes were made on location at Plattsburg, Lake Placid, Van Cordlandt Park, Mount Kisco and Delaware Water Gap.

Miss Davies, in the title role, has a part that is even of wider scope than those of Pat O'Day in "Little Old New York" and Mary Tudor in "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

More than 8,500 persons appear in "Janice Meredith." By special cooperation with the United States government, the famous 26th Infantry, quartered at the Plattsburg barracks, and three troops of cavalry as well as two detachments of artillery stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, were utilized in the filming of the big screen battles.

Undoubtedly one of the greatest casts ever seen in a motion picture production is that which appears in support of Miss Davies. It includes such stars of the stage and screen as Holbrook Blinn, Harrison Ford, Maclyn Arbuckle, Joseph Kilgour, Tyrone Power, W. C. Fields, Olin Howland, Douglas Stevenson, May Vokes, Helen Lee Worthing, George Seigemann, Spencer Charters, Mrs. Maclyn Arbuckle, Hattie Delaro, Lee Beggs and Princess de Bourbon.

The cost of the production is estimated at more than $1,500,000, and a special musical score for the picture was composed by Deems Taylor.

Gustave Stahlberg, who succeeded the late Victor Herbert at the Cosmopolitan in New York, will conduct the augmented orchestra at the Majestic on the opening night.

LOCAL COLOR IN NEW DAVIES PICTURE

MARION DAVIES AND W. C. FIELDS

Miss Davies is the star of Cosmopolitan's newest picture, "Janice Meredith," which comes to the Majestic Monday.

Young Spanish Violinist To Play Here Tuesday

Carlos Sedano, the brilliant young Spanish violin virtuoso, will make his Boston debut at Symphony Hall next Tuesday evening. There is great interest in this event, for Sedano's first appearance in Carnegie Hall, New York, last October, has brought a sudden and considable interest in this newly found musician in that city. Sedano showed remarkable ability from even his early boyhood in Spain. He has studied in the principal conservatories and completed his training under Leopold Auer.

Carlos Dedano.

The first great violinst of the present musical season here will be Jascha Heifetz, who will play in Symphony Hall, on Sunday afternoon, December 7.

GLEE CLUB AT RITES FOR MRS. HARDING

Republican Organization to Sing Song' She Loved at Services Monday

Washington, Nov. 22 (I.N.S.)—Military honors will be rendered at the funeral services for Mrs. Warren G. Harding. Major-General Omar Bundy, commander of the Fifth Corps, Columbus, was instructed to send 100 men to the funeral.

Marion, O., Nov. 22.—Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at Epworth M. E. Church here for Mrs. Florence Kling Harding.

George B. Christian, Jr., former secretary to Mr. Harding and a lifelong friend of the family, is in charge of the arrangements.

Tentative funeral plans, Mr. Christian said, include singing of "The End of the Perfect Day" by the Columbus, O., Republican Glee Club, which, while Mr. Harding was President, was heard often at the White House on special occasions. The song was Mrs. Harding's favorite and always was requested by her when any musical organization appeared at the Executive Mansion.

The Rev. Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of the Epworth M. E. Church, of which Mrs. Harding has been a member since girlhood, will deliver a short sermon. The Rev. George W. Landes, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, of which Mr. Harding was a member, will read the Scriptures. The entombment service will be read by Dr. Swank.

Honorary pallbearers will be officials of the government from Washington, whose names have not been announced. Active pallbearers will include old friends of the Harding family.

Mrs. C. B. Kling, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Harding, and her daughter, Louise, who is seriously ill, will not be able to come here for the services.

ELKS IN SILENT TRIBUTE TO MRS. HARDING

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 22.—In the midst of a dinner in his honor, John D. Price of Canton, O., grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. E., arose and asked 400 Omaha Elks in the dining hall to stand a minute in silent tribute to Mrs. Florence Kling Harding.

The exalted ruler characterized the widow of President Warren G. Harding as "the widow, not only of one of our greatest Presidents, but the widow of the greatest Elk that ever lived."

Concert at Girl's School

A concert will be given at St. Agnes School for Girls, No. 71 Walnut Park, Newton, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Joyce Kilmer tenor, will sing. Miss Grace Donahue will render a number of harp selections.

Army and Navy Ball Will Give Society Its Next Full Round of Sport and Pleasure

By BETTY ALDEN.

ALWAYS a distinctly colorful event is the Army and Navy Ball, which this year takes place on Friday, December 5. It is one of the few occasions when the masculine portion of the company adds anything to the assemblage in a sartorial way.

The most important officers of the Army and Navy wear their stunning dress uniforms at the ball, and these, together with the brilliant gowns worn by the feminine guests, always transform the ballroom of the Copley Plaza into an unusually colorful scene.

Mrs. Philip S. Sears heads the notable group managing the affair, her committee including Nathaniel F. Ayer, Brigadier General John D. Barrette and Mrs. Barrette, Brigadier General Malvern H. Barnum, Walter H. Bradley, Mrs. Andrew W. Brewster, Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Charles K. Cummings, Rear Admiral Louis R. de Steiguer and Mrs. de Steiguer, Commander Robert W. Emmons, Major General Mark L. Hersey, Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Colonel William J. Keville, Miss Elizabeth C. Leland, Mrs. Charles S. Minot, Colonel L. H. Moses and Mrs. L. H. Moses, Mrs. Guy Murchie, Commander F. H. Poteet, Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, Captain Harrison G. Reynolds, Miss Alice Sargent, Mrs. Philip S. Sherwood, Pierpont L. Stackpole, Colonel F. S. Stopford, Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Captain Ross T. Whistler and Frederick S. Whitwell.

AT 11 o'clock there will be a competitive drill between the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, for the Directors' Cup, which was won last year by the Army.

The patronesses list, a most distinguished one, is far too long to be printed within these columns, but a few of the smart folk sponsoring the ball include Mesdames John S. Ames, Walter C. Baylies, Boylston A. Beal, Horace Binney, Gerald Bramwell, Theodore G. Bremer, Gorham Brooks, Arthur T. Cabot, Russell S. Codman, William Endicott, Charles P. Greenough, 2nd, Amory A. Lawrence, George H. Lyman, Harold Peabody, Nathaniel Thayer, A. Winsor Weld and Richard Wheatland.

Many of the boxes have already been taken, a few of the boxholders being Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno, Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham, Mrs. Neal Rantoul, Mrs. Philip S. Sears, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw and Mrs. Barrett Wendell.

One of the many and distinguished patronesses for the Army and Navy ball, taking place at the Copley-Plaza on Friday evening, December 5.

A HOST of prominent folk have signified their intention to be present at the opening performance of "Janice Meredith" with charming Marion Davies playing the role of the heroine of Colonial days.

Many members of the fashionable world witnessed the premier Boston performance of Miss Davies in "Little Old New York," and an equally representative audience will be present for the opening performance of "Janice Meredith" at the Majestic Theatre next Monday night.

A VERY jolly party was the ball which Dr. and Mrs. Langdon Frothingham gave at the Hotel Somerset on Thursday night to present their daughter Ellen.

In the receiving line stood Mrs. Frothingham, Miss Ellen and an older sister, Miss Olga Frothingham. Oddly enough, the debutante, Miss Ellen, wore a charmingly becoming frock of pale green, fashioned in the slim, straight-line mode with a wide border of ostrich of the same shade at the hem, while her sister was gowned in oyster white, an affair of brocaded silk, with a lace drapery falling from one shoulder. Generally it is the debutante who wears white at her presentation party.

Mrs. Frothingham, who is known for her geniality and sweetness of manner, wore a really lovely frock of rich golden yellow, with bands of dark brown fur banding the loose chiffon sleeves.

Among the debutantes noted at the ball were the Misses Margaret Grannis, Virginia Lees, Eleanor Gibson, Gretchen Brown, Althea Payson, Polly Palfrey, Eleanor Mason, Grace Cushing, Anne Tudor and Miss Helen Kennard.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL L. WELLDON, who spend the Summers on the North Shore at Ipswich, have taken a house in New York at No. 117 East Eighty-first street.

A meeting was held the other afternoon at the Brimmer street residence of Miss Mary L. Ware, at which the work being done by habit clinics in Boston was discussed. Mrs. Lewis Kennedy Morse, president of the Woman's Education Association, presided over the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. McCagg have closed their Newport house and have gone to New York for the remainder of the Winter.

Miss Natalie Hammond, daughter of the John Hays Hammonds of Gloucester and Washington, acted as producers of a moving picture exhibition given the other afternoon at the capital at Rauscher's. The subject was Viola Dana's "Revelation."

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton, who are remaining late into the season at their country home in Ipswich, will not leave there for New York until next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyon Weyburn of Marlboro street have been spending a few days in New York at the Hotel Lorraine.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stockton are back in town after their season at "Highcliffe," Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Miss Grace Boynton Monks, who is making a round of visits in New York and Philadelphia, will return to her home in Manchester in time to be with her mother, Mrs. Richard J. Monks, for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Junius A. Richards was present at the luncheon given the other day at the Madison in New York by Mrs. John D. Ryan.

NEWMAN PARTY VISITS "ROAD TO MANDALAY"

Newman conducted another large party of world tourists last night at Symphony Hall on the second of his annual Travel Talks.

He followed the trail of Kipling's "Road to Mandalay." He said the muddy river offered no chance to see flying fishes, but he did show his delighted audience some excellent pictures of Burmese girls "a-smoking white cheroots."

Among the pictures were magnificent scenes in Calcutta, Darjeeling, Benares and Rangoon. A surprise was the motion pictures of hill girls taken in Siam, almost at the Chinese border. The girls wore their hair shingled in the most approved fashion. Next week, Ceylon and Singapore.

CONCERT TO BENEFIT FARMINGTON NURSE

The concert by Mme. Louise Homer to be given in Symphony Hall December 3 is being sponsored by the Farmington Society of Boston to raise money for the nurse which the society supports in the Community Health Association. Each year this nurse, known as the Farmington Nurse, is maintained through the various activities of the Farmington Society, and at its monthly meetings dressings are made for her use.

MANY ENDORSE AMERICAN'S BASKET FUND

Classed as Most Practical Medium to Aid Needy Ones on Christmas

Widely known Bostonians continue to endorse the Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fundd of the Boston American, believing it to be one of the most practical mediums for reaching the needy during the Holiday Season.

One of the most recent endorsements of the work done by the Fund comes from the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, one of Boston's best known clergymen. In a letter to the Christmas Fund Director, Dr. Johnson tells of the great happiness he received from personal contact in distributing some of the American's baskets to the needy in bygone years.

His letter follows:

"It gives me pleasure to write you a note of commendation in regard to the work which is being done by the Boston American in its 'Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fund.' I have been acquainted with this work ever since it was started ten years or so ago. I know of the good cheer which it has brought to many poor people of Boston.

"That you may know that this letter is not perfunctory, let me say that I once accompanied Mr. George of the Boston American in the distribution of the Christmas baskets. I have always remembered the looks of happiness which greeted us in many a wretched tenement house in Charlestown, where this particular distribution took place."

GIFT FROM MERCHANT.

Among recent contributions to the fund is one of twenty-five dollars from Felix Vorenberg, one of Boston's leading merchants. Mr. Vorenberg believes the American's Basket Fund to be a remarkable institution. He has been an annual contributor for many years.

Another contribution of five dollars came from William H. Gardner of Winthrop. He sent that sum in behalf of his daughter, Ruth, now at college.

In sending the contribution, he wrote:

"My daughter, Ruth, who is away at college, and who has been a subscriber since the start, has asked me to send enclosed check for five dollars, as her contribution. It is certainly a fine thing to do, and shows the right Christmas spirit."

Heart-rending appeals for good continue to pour into the office of the Christmas Basket Fund. That there is extensive poverty in Greater Boston due chiefly to unemployment and illness is clearly evident fro mthe contents of letters received.

Unless contributions to the American's Fund come in faster there is no doubt that thousands of these appeals for food will remain unanswered.

Among the appeals was one from a mother in Roxbury. It read: "I am writing to ask you if you will please send me a basket on Christmas day as my husband is out of work and I am sick in bed. I recently gave birth to a baby. I have two other children, and if you don't help us we will not have anything on Christmas day."

PITIFUL APPEAL.

Another pitiful letter follows: "If you will be kind enough to send me a basket this Christmas it will make my four little children very happy. I have heard that you are good hearted and I am very poor. My husband does not work much of the time so please remember us this year."

From an old lady came this heart-breaking appeal: "I am a poor lone old woman, trying to exist in these hard times, and if you will send me a Christmas basket it will help me very much."

A young mother appeals for her children as follows:

"Won't you please put us on your list for a Christmas basket as I have three children and am very poor. Last year we did not have anything and I felt very badly for my children. Please do not forget us this year and the God above will bless you for what you are doing."

NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH FOR WOLLASTON

Work Starts on Edifice to Be Erected Opposite Merry-mount Park

Wollaston is to have a new Catholic church. Work has been started. The church will be in St. Ann's parish, the Rev. Fr. John J. Fitzgerald pastor.

The church is being built on one of the most desirable sections in Quincy, directly opposite Merrymount Park.

Only the basement will be completed at the present time. It is planned to seat 874 persons.

The structure will be of fireproof construction, concrete and Weymouth seam face granite.

The so-called mushroom system will be used in connection with the concrete floor of the upper church. This system, combined with the two-way pan type, will be treated in a way unique in church design.

The panels in the concrete ceiling, resulting from the removal of the pan forms, are accurately spaced to form a ceiling design, and the entire ceiling will be left unplastered.

The entire seating portion of the basement will show only four concrete columns, and these will be of a scale reminiscent of cathedral crypts of the Middle Ages.

The panelled ceiling will result in an acoustically perfect auditorium, as no beams project down from the ceiling more than four inches.

HELLO BOB!

BOBBED HAIR IS HERE TO STAY! Fashion long ago placed her stamp of approval on the Bob. The leading stars of stage and screen have bobbed their hair because they MUST look their feminine best. What further proof need one have that Bobbing beautifies the hair and adds youthfulness and charm to one's appearance!

Therefore, women no longer waste time over a mass of unruly long hair that presses heavily on the scalp, needs constant "fixing," and is a nuisance generally. The maid and matron of today appreciate the convenience and comfort of bobbed hair, and appreciate even more the fact that A BOB MEANS ENHANCED BEAUTY AND YOUTHFUL CHARM.

The experts whose names appear on this page will be pleased to help you choose the style of Bob that is most suitable for your features. You will find that each of these specialists are courteous and polite, and their truly artistic work makes each lovely face look lovelier!

NORA LEE A Story of Flaming Youth

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

START THE STORY HERE TODAY

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Fairdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora at 17 fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew's wife recovers and attacks him with a pistol. He says good-by to Nora Lee and gives her a packet of bonds. Andrew is killed in an auto accident, and his widow demands the bonds of Nora. Nora meets Maxwell Reed, who makes love to her. Margaret's cherished letters from Andrew disappear. Nora bids Dane goodby. Margaret dies and Nora is left alone.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

GONE! Laid away. Even the still face, with its charmed, mysterious smile, as though it gazed at last on unutterable beauty, was shut from her.

She could not enter that room. She walked blindly up the hill till she came to that barren plateau that she had often pictured as the wild heath where Eustacia Vye wandered. Margaret used to say: "How fortunate we are to live in the very mist of civilization and yet to have the moorlands at our door."

In the spring time they came here to pluck the purple flag lilies—and the poppies were splendid even through the month of July.

She sat here looking out to the ocean—a gray, bleak stretch of water. Even the Golden Gate had drawn about it a murky cloak that half shut out the brown slopes of the Marin hills. All the enchanting hues of blue and flame were dimmed. The last time she and Margaret stood here, Margaret said: "Oh, what uplifting things are colors in the sky—"

The house, the hills, the very sky thronged with image of her. She would see it always—seek it everywhere—

She went back to the house and sat at the desk where her mother wrote; where she made out her accounts and would sometimes pause with the pencil, tapping in puzzlement at her lips. Nora Lee loved that capricious impatience in Margaret, though it so rarely showed.

Margaret's Note

She went through the drawers, opened books. This one here was the one Margaret read only four days ago in the garden. Nora Lee had brought it. She turned the pages idly. There was a sheet of paper lines written in pencil:

"My Darling Girl—You must not bow. That will only grieve me—only make complete the sorrow of my life. Go on as I would have you go. Dear gypsy child—"

The three words of the unfinished sentence faltered. Oh—her mother had known and had not said a word—had pretended to be strong—had not kept her home—

And her strength had failed writing those farewell lines . . .

Nora Lee stared about the empty room. She pressed the paper between frightened palms. Sounds rushed through the house; the wind rattled a shade. She went up and pressed her arms against it . . she whispered in a confused distraction not knowing what she said.

But when she saw the nurse with her suitcase, a panic of fright crossed her. She said a little wildly, "Please stay—stay a while—"

She kept the nurse with her in these gaunt, frightening days— But she scarcely noticed her. She fought against thinking — fought against effort.

Word From Dane

Miss Stanford said: "You must straighten your affairs, Miss Meadows. There are bills."

She answered: "Yes—" But remained hour after hour at the breakfast table, her arms folded. Or she went out and walked with such furious haste that she returned exhausted and sat longer hours at Margaret's desk.

She was so lonely—she felt herself so completely abandoned that she dared not relax this obstinate blank apathy a single moment. She felt that her mind wandered here and would recover. But if she brought it back suddenly she would go mad.

At the end of five days two telegrams and letters came from Dane. "No word from you. What is wrong? Wire."

Then came a letter, tender, vehement, full of remonstrance; full of engrossing, hot demands: "Nora Lee—you must come to me or if you can't, then I'll return. You must not be ab[illegible] — darling, you have me. Don't I count at all? Come and let us be married now. I won't interfere with your plans for college. I have thought out everything—you poor, sweet dear — how terrible that you must stay a moment alone. Write the minute you get this, for I am half wild aching for you—"

Plans to Go

She cried her heart out reading through the dozen pages. She saw his laughing eyes; his sweet young mouth, and they seemed strong and beautiful to her. There was someone—someone—

She wrote back: "I will come—"

She made plans for this.

She could talk to Dane. She could recount to him all her mother's lovely way. He had loved Margaret —had come and played for her.

In a forlorn, chill way she thought how comforting would be his arms; how overpowering the relief of weeping with another—to say: "Oh, Dane, she had such a smile—if you could but see it. Oh, Dane, she was the bravest thing—"

She decided to sell the house. She began to make ready. But it was a slow, torturing task. She must settle all these affairs.

The bills for all the recent expenses were somewhat staggering. Miss Sanford helped her to go over the accounts. There was owing $1,137.

She went down to the bank and exchanged for cash a second of the fifteen $1,000 Liberty bonds Andrew had given. She mailed checks covering all the items.

One morning two days later Miss Sanford said: "There is a man in the living room who must see you."

He was a plain, raw faced fellow with a scant lock of brown hair sticking up between his temples.

He said: "I'm Mr. Evans of the detective bureau. We find that you cashed a Liberty bond, Miss Meadows. This bond and fourteen others, numbered consecutively, have been reported to the police department as stolen. Can you explain?"

The detective pressed a wet, loose end of his cigar between thumb and forefinger. He had the manner of one performing an all-important rite. After a leisurely moment, he cast an upward, knowing glance at Nora Lee that said metallicaly: "We've got you. Come through!"

"Can you explain, Miss Meadows?"

"The bonds were not stolen. They belong to me."

"You have the other fourteen then?" How long have they belonged to you?"

"Since they were given to me."

"Hand Them Over"

Mr. Evans smiled tolerantly: "Come, come, no stalling. You understand, young lady, that the theft of $15,000 is a felony, punishable with a long term in San Quentin?"

Nora Lee closed the living room door. She stood here a moment because of the wild swelling of her breath. She held to the knob as though she would shut from the world the infamy she felt had come.

Andrew's wife had reported the bonds stolen.

If she surrendered them she would be branded a thief; if she kept them she would have to explain why Andrew having a wife, should give $15,000 to her.

She cast a frantic look about the room as though inspiration would come from its silent walls. She walked unsteadily to a chair and sat with her hands clasped in her lap.

"Do you understand the consequences of stealing such a large sum, Miss?"

"I have not stolen anything. The bonds were given to me."

JANICE MEREDITH Thrilling Romance of the Revolution

MARION DAVIES, beautiful film star, appears as the heroine of this romance in Cosmopolitan Pictures' production, "Janice Meredith." The picture opens in Boston at the Majestic Theatre next Monday.

By PAUL LEICESTER FORD
Author of "The Honorable Peter Sterling," "The Story of an Untold Love," etc.

"THIS is to give notice that I despise too much the cowardly villain who wrote and nailed this on my door to pay any attention to him. A reward of two pounds will be given for any information leading to the discovery of said cowardly villain.

"LAMBERT MEREDITH."

Janice (Marion Davies) and Charles Fownes

For a moment the servant stood with a slight smile on his face at the contradiction; then, with a shrug of his shoulders, he entered the public room of the tavern. Within the air was too thick with pipes in full blast, and the light of the two dips was so feeble, that he halted in order to distinguish the dozen figures of the occupants, all of whom gave him instant attention.

"Who is this hind?"

"'Tis a new bond-servant o' Squire Meredith's, who I hearn is no smouch on horses. Folks think he's a bloodyback who's took French leave."

"A deserter, heigh?" said the traveller, once more looking at the man, who was now exchanging with the peddler the three-shilling note for the razor. He waited till the trade had been cousummated, and then suddenly said aloud, in a sharp, decisive way, "Attention! To the left—dress!"

Fownes' body suddenly stiffened itself, his hands dropped to his sides, and his head turned quickly to the left. For a second he held this position, then as suddenly relaxing himself, he turned and eyed the giver of the order.

"So ho! my man. It seems ye have carried Brown Bess," said the traveller, giving the slang term for musket.

Flushed in face, Fownes wheeled on the man hotly, while the whole room waited his reply in silence. "Thou liest!" he asserted.

"Thou varlet!" cried the man so insulted, flushing in turn, as he sprang to his feet and caught up from the table a heavy riding-whip.

Again the colour sprang to Fownes' face and his lips parted as if an angry retort were ready. But instead of uttering it, he turned and started to leave the room.

"Ay," cried the traveller, "run, while there's time, deserter."

Fownes faced about in the doorway, with a smile on his face not pleasant to see, it was at once so contemptuous and so lowering. Yet when he spoke there was an amused, almost merry note in his voice, as if he were enjoying something.

"Ar hain't no more deserter than thou bain't spy," he retorted, as he left the tavern and tethered.

The departure of the bond-servant, leaving the sting of innuendo behind him, had turned all eyes toward the traveller, and Bagby but voiced the curiosity of the roomful when he inquired: "What did Fownes call you spy for?"

"Nay, man, he called me not that," denied the stranger, "unless he meant to call himself a deserter as well. Landlord, a bowl of swizzle for the company! Gentlemen, I am Lincolnshire born and bred."

Stories for Bedtime

By Foxy Grandpa

IT was Spring and we had just arrived in the country. As I walked over the place I noticed that someone had left an old box out under the apple tree.

So I said to Bobby the next morning:

"Bobby, run out into the yard and throw away that box. No, on second thought, you can chop it up for kindling."

"I can't chop up that box, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby.

"Why not, Bobby?" I asked.

"There's a nest in it."

"In that case we won't even move the box," said I, getting up.

We waited and the first thing we knew there were a pair of dear little wrens billing and cooing together in the sweetest bird-language you ever heard.

"I'll bet she's going to lay some eggs," whispered Bobby.

Bobby was right, for the next week he came running in and announced:

"Four eggs in Mrs. Wren's nest, Foxy Grandpa."

After a few weeks we looked into the box. There they were four big mouths on four little feathered bodies, wide open waiting for their mother to bring them worms.

First the mother sang her song. Then the baby repeated it after her. If his little voice broke on a note or if he hesitated, Mama Wren would take up the melody right where he had left off and then make him repeat it.

She did this with each of her children. And how patient she was and what a good teacher!

Every day we watched this charming sight and finally the children were big enough to fly about—and how they did sing! It was lovely to hear it.

"They practiced very hard," said Bobby.

"That's the only way," said I

"I'm going to try these exercises again," said Bobby going to the piano.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

By Ann Lisle

"I'M sick of your 'holier than thou' pose," burst out Jeanie petulantly. Then turning to Jim she added: "What is the use of arguing with a woman like Anne? She always knows better than anyone else."

"Would you actually send Mabel back to a man like Bonnie Buchanan if you could?" I gasped.

"Are you taking me to task?" Jeanie angrily demanded.

But Jim burst out into an ugly laugh as he cried:

"For the love of Mike, Anne, don't act as if you were the world's one and only noble soul. You can't do all the social reforming in town. Granted Buchanan's a rotter, Mabel chose to marry him, and now when she's through let her get out for herself with the mud on her skirts, but not on your hands. That's all Jeanie and I ask. But when it comes to the point, I think I have a right to insist that you save us from any more mixups such as you dragged us through when you were insisting that Neal was a martyr instead of a criminal."

"Precisely!" agreed Jeanie, her lips setting into a hard line of approval.

"What are you getting at?" I asked bluntly. "Are you trying to exact a promise from me? And if so—just what is it?"

"This!" burst out Jeanie with the utmost satisfaction. And then, disregarding the humiliation it must cause me to have her speak so brutally in Pat's presence, she went on glibly: "As I told you upstairs, your present conduct is driving Jim from you"—

"Jeanie!" protested Jim, shocked by the ugly baldness of this statement. But Jeanie was not to be stopped. She went on in a cold, accusing voice.

"You can't expect a man of Jim's standing to permit himself to be dragged into one ugly situation after another. You can't dream that man can go on loving a wife who pays no attention to his wishes or traditions. Sometimes I think you're doing us more harm than even Neal Hyland worked us."

My lips went dry and my eyes grew hot and staring as Jeanie spoke.

"Jeanie!" commanded Pat with sudden sternness. "I can't afford to let you say another word. You mustn't— Please, dear, for my sake, come upstairs and let me make you comfy on your big chaise longue. Jim and Anne will excuse us."

Pat's tone told me that he was begging me to excuse Jeanie for everything. And in the smile Pat sent me I knew there was devoted friendship, sore harried between the danger of crossing Jeanie and his chivalrous desire to save me from being badgered in his home.

Suddenly Jeanie's attack collapsed. She made no protest against Pat's suggestion that she must go up to her own room.

To Be Continued Monday.

Trip The Light Fantastic

IN SILVER SLIPPERS at the Thanksgiving party—I know where you can buy beauties for $4.00. They wear well, too. I have had mine a year and they are still bright.

STOCKINGS to match in a Specialty Shop for $1.59. 22 shades. Regular $1.95 value and a famous brand.

A NEW PLACE TO DANCE is a beauty spot in Boston's Back Bay. Silk draped walls. Real Broadway orchestra. Artistic and refined, yet sparkling.

ALMOST NEXT DOOR is a delightful place where you can dance to Hawaiian music between delicious courses. No cover charge. Reasonable prices, unusually fine service.

GAYEST OF THE GAY is a cabaret in a well-known cafe (get the rhyme?). Good eats and a good time and some real entertainment.

AND IF YOU LIKE French pastry, there is none better than that served in a restaurant not far from the shopping and theatre center. A real place for the big eats, too. Good opportunity to dance.

FORGET YOUR NOSE for the evening after you smooth on a touch of a special cream. Holds the powder on and keeps the shine off for hours. (Corrects the cause of the shine, too, and reduces enlarged pores.) 50 cents, large tube.

I AM QUITE CRAZY about a brand new powder. Imported. Flower scented. Invisibly fine and smooth over the special nose cream. All shades. A fat velvety puff comes in a box and a real value for 75 cents.

OF COURSE HE will send you flowers for the Thanksgiving dance or dinner. Wear a spray of "Golden Wedding" or combine with chrysanthemums for your Thanksgiving centerpiece. Sold exclusively by a smart florist.

IF YOU ARE NEAR Cambridge, have your hair dressed for the dance at a charming place where they specialize in shingles and marcels. Rivals the Boston shops in skill and service.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Some time ago you published a letter, signed "Shipwrecked," in which the question was asked whether love can come only once in a lifetime.

A few years ago my answer to that would have been as you said, "One can be truly in love only once." But now I feel differently. I loved my husband dearly and would still love him were he living.

He had a close friend who all through my husband's long illness was a great comfort because of his sympathy and real help. Since my husband's death he has helped me in my troubles. The result is I am very much in love with him.

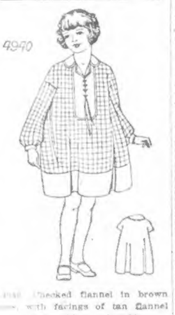
Still, it occurs to me, am I as much in love as I think I am. Are we, after all, so made that we are capable of only one real love?

ONE IN DOUBT.

IF I were you I would not allow puzzling questions to withhold me from the happiness that love can bring. The question for you to decide—provided your friend loves you and has asked you to marry him—is whether you love him.

If he has not asked you to marry him—and on this point your letter is vague—put the whole problem of the past away from you and try to think of him and treat him as a good friend, for this he has proved himself to be.

A PRETTY 'SMOCK' DRESS A TUNIC MODEL



4940. Checked flannel in brown tones, with facings of tan flannel was used for this comfortable garment. Green rep with facings of darker green would also be pleasing. The "bishop" sleeve portion may be omitted.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. An 8 year size requires 2¾ yards of 40 inch material if made with the long "bishop" sleeve, and of one material. If made as illustrated in the large view it will require 1⅝ yards of checked material and ½ yard of plain material 40 inches wide. With short sleeves ¼ yard less material is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

THANKSGIVING PRIZES

ONLY NINE DAYS MORE TO WIN A HOOSIER

OR one of the many other valuable prizes that Martha Lee is offering for the best menu for a real New England Thanksgiving dinner, with two recipes, sent in by members of the WNAC American Women's Club during the month of November.

Now is your opportunity, for surely you have a pretty good idea of what makes a real, typical Thanksgiving dinner and some especially good recipes which may have been handed down to you from your grandmother or from somebody else's grandmother.

The Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet from Arthur McArthur & Co., No. 111 Washington street, is the first prize in the November contest, and it is a beauty. Has sliding work table, firm at any position; extra rapid shaker sifter that sifts and fluffs the flour at the same time; a large easy-filling flour bin with glass door that shows the amount of flour on hand, adjusted table height; a velvet lined drawer with sections for all your silverware of immediate needs. There are many others that are well worth working for.

The second prize will be an Erla Cir-Kit Radio set, containing everything necessary to build a radio and high powered radio set. All you have to do is to assemble it. Valued at $56.00.

The third prize is an Estate Toaster—makes four pieces of toast at one time, yet uses no more current than a two-piece toaster. One lever movement turns all four racks. Valued at $8.75. From MacNeill's, No. 101 Bedford street, Boston.

Fourth prize is a Twin Oil and Vinegar Cruet, made of clear Viennese crystal—graceful and useful. A beautiful new European importation from Bigelow, Kennard & Co., Boston.

Fifth prize is a case of Canada dry ginger ale (two dozen bottles). One of the most popular brands on the market. King of the ginger ales.

Sixth prize is a case of Bunny Welsh Rarebit (one dozen jars): a delicious ready prepared cheese product that can be warmed up for a rarebit, used for sauces, sandwich fillings or in endless number of tasty ways.

Seventh prize, five pounds of Monarch coffee; a brand you will enjoy getting acquainted with.

Eighth prize, a case of Malt breakfast food. An easy to prepare breakfast cereal, nourishing and tasty.

Ninth prize is a five-pound box of Kent's chocolates. A splendid quality.

There are only two conditions to this contest. Be sure and give your full name and address with your membership number in the WNAC American Women's Club (and if you are not already one, fill out the coupon which appears on this page) and in your menus and recipes mention one of the following food products:

American Sugar Refinery

You Can Quickly Limber Up Sore, Stiff, Swollen Joints

Even Chronic Rheumatic Swellings in Knee, Elbow, Shoulder or Finger Joints Yield to the Mighty Powerful Influence of JOINT-EASE.

It's here, right in town and every live druggist has it.

It's a low price remedy, to be sure, but that doesn't stop it from taking the kinks, lameness or torture out of your troubled joints.

Joint-Ease is the name, so-called because it is compounded solely for the purpose of relieving all joint ailments.

Just rub it on the tormented, lame joints and in just a few seconds it will penetrate to the bone and blessed comfort comes quickly.

It absorbs instantly and is so clean and stainless that you can rub it on often and get, thereby, results much more quickly when the joint is inflamed and the agony intense.

Being such a powerful counter irritant, it cannot help bringing speedy and helpful results in congestion, sore throat, chest colds, lumbago and neuralgia much quicker than almost any remedy you can buy.

But you must remember that it is for joint afflictions that it is mostly dispensed and its helpfulness will astonish you after all ordinary liniments and other treatments have failed.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

MARION DAVIES' FILM MUSIC ON AIR

Score of "Janice Meredith" to Be Broadcasted Monday From Station WNAC

The modern idea of fitting the music to a motion picture will be well demonstrated Monday night when Station WNAC, the Shepard Stores, will broadcast the entire musical score of "Janice Meredith" featuring Marion Davies, direct from the stage of the Shubert-Majestic Theatre, at 8:20 p. m.

The musical score to fit this new film was composed by Deems Taylor, whose works have attained wide fame, and have been played by such notable musical organizations as the New York Symphony and Philharmonic and the Philadelphia orchestras. Perhaps many music lovers remember the symphonic suite, "Through a Looking Glass" written by this composer, and called one of the most popular compositions ever written by an American.

The name of Deems Taylor spells excellence in music, but combined with the superb direction of Gustave Stahlberg, the score of "Janice Meredith" becomes great. Mr. Stahlberg was concert master for the late Victor Herbert and succeeded him as director of the Cosmopolitan Theatre Orchestra. An augmented orchestra under Mr. Stahlberg's direction will play at the premier of the motion picture Monday night.

DETAIN AUTO DRIVER AFTER FATAL CRASH

Marblehead, Nov. 22 — Michael dron of Taunton, driver of an auto which crashed into a telephone pole on the Lynn-Salem road, causing the death of William E. Goodrich of Brockton, a boxing promoter, was held at the police station here today. Pending the report of the medical examiner, no charge was preferred against him. In addition to Goodrich and Waldron, the passengers were "K. O." Bargus, who was to take part in a boxing program at Salem, and Fred Bouchard of Taunton.

IT'S PIE TIME AGAIN.

Although the first pie saw the light of day in England (so history and the encyclopedia tell us), pies are considered characteristically American and I think nine-tenths of the population outside of New England believe that they form our piece-de-resistance for breakfast.

It is hard to understand just why so comparatively few housewives make good pies, for it is a really simple process which if carefully followed proves invariably successful.

First be sure you have a good recipe—then be sure of your oven and your problem is solved.

I've given you several recipes and the foundation rules which included the best brands of pastry flour, ice cold shortening and ice water. Use the shortening you like best. Butter gives a pleasing flavor, though it is expensive. Lard and cooking oil are both good, and there are some excellent hardened vegetable shortenings on the market that make light, flaky pie crust. A tiny bit of baking powder helps to make pastry light, too.

Handle the dough as little as possible and roll it lightly. If you would like the recipes for pie crusts repeated, just write to me and they will be sent to you promptly.

APRICOT TARTS, RECIPE NO. 576

One c. dried apricots, ¼ c. fine cracker crumbs, 2-3 c. sugar, 1 egg, ½ c. chopped walnut meats, rich pastry.

Soak and cook the apricots until tender. Drain off all juice and then press the apricots through a coarse strainer. To this apricot pulp add the sugar, cracker crumbs, egg slightly beaten and the chopped walnut meats. Roll the pastry to ⅛ inch thickness and cut into circles five or six inches in diameter. Put a spoonful of the filling in the centre of half of the circles, wet the edges and press the remaining circles in position on top, pricking the entire surface. Bake in a moderate hot oven for fifteen minutes or until the tarts are well browned.

APPLE CREAM PIE, RECIPE NO. 577.

Five small apples, 1½ c. cream, 4 tbsp. flour, ¾ c. sugar, ⅛ tsp. nutmeg, pastry.

Line a medium sized pie plate with pastry, having a fluted edge, and sprinkle the bottom with two tablespoonfuls of flour and three tablespoonfuls of sugar mixed together. Pare and core the apples and cut in halves. Place one-half an apple in each eighth of the pie and one-half in the center. Pour the cream over the apples and then sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of flour and nine tablespoonfuls of sugar mixed together. Add the nutmeg if desired. Bake in a good hot oven for ten minutes to set the rim, then reduce the heat for thirty minutes, or until the apples are tender and the custard set.

CHOCOLATE NUT PIE, RECIPE NO. 578.

Two medium sized boiled potatoes, 1 tbsp. butter, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ c. powdered sugar, 1 c. finely chopped nut meats, ¼ lb. cake milk chocolate, 1 c. pastry flour, ½ tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt, 4 tbsp. shortening, 1 egg, 1 tsp. vanilla, whipped cream.

To make the filling mash the potatoes, add the butter and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and beat together. Add the sugar, nuts, chocolate melted, and vanilla. Beat together until light and fluffy. Set aside to cool. To make the pastry, sift the pastry flour, baking-powder, and one-half teaspoonful of salt together, cut in the shortening thoroughly and add the eggs unbeaten. Mix and turn on a floured board, roll thin. Bake ten minutes or until uniformly golden brown. Cool and fill with the chilled mixture. Garnish with whipped cream.

RECIPE NO. 579

CRANBERRY AND PRUNE PIE

1½ c. halved cranberries, 1 c. prunes, 1 tbsp. butter, ¾ c. sugar, 1 tbsp. flour, Pastry.

Line a medium sized pie plate with pastry. Mix together the halved cranberries, the prunes soaked until soft and cut in small pieces, the sugar and the flour. Turn into the pastry lined pie plate, dot over with the butter, cover with strips of pastry and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. This may be baked in double crust if preferred.

SQUASH PIE—RECIPE NO. 580.

1 c. sifted squash, ¼ c. brown sugar, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. flour, ¼ tsp. ginger, ¼ tsp. nutmeg, 1 egg, 2 c. milk. Pastry.

Line a medium sized pie plate with pastry, having a fluted edge. Place the sifted squash in a bowl, and stir into it the brown sugar, salt, flour, ginger and nutmeg. Add the egg slightly beaten, together with the milk. Stir well together and pour into the pastry lined pie plate. Bake in a moderately hot oven for ten minutes to set the rim, then reduce the heat a little for thirty minutes to produce a firm, uncurdled result.

DERELICT MINE KILLS 9 ON FRENCH SMACK

Boulogne, Nov. 22 (I.N.S.)—Nine sailors were killed today by the explosion of a mine which the fishing smack Yvonne found off the French coast. The fishing boat picked up the mine and was bringing it to port when it exploded.

ALL ALIENS MUST BE REGISTERED IN FRANCE

Washington, Nov. 22.—A new French decree under which every alien of more than fifteen years of age who plans to remain in France more than ten days must register his arrival within 48 hours, was made public today by the State Department. Cards of identity will be issued and the applicant must provide four photographs and other information relative to his nationality, profession and family.

Last Night

—By THE LISTENER—

It was a fine concert furnished by the Hotchkiss Trio last night from WNAC. Such instrumental music always finds a welcome in the home of the majority of fans. Of particular beauty were the cello solos played by Mr. Turner. The "Virginia Judge," monologue, however seems decidedly unadaptable to the feminine voice.

There was some excellent singing on WDBR's weekly prayer service. Miss Helene Portune sang selections which came through clearly. Her voice, in blending with the piano accompaniment, sounded just like some of the broadcasts we have had from concert halls.

The concert by the United States navy band at Washington and relayed by WEEI, was without doubt the treat of the evening. In listening to broadcasts of this type one cannot help but feel the utter foolishness of chasing long distance in search of entertainment.

In listening to the commercial code practice sent out in the early part of the evening from WGI, one wonders what the point of it all might be. The sending was so fast that none but expert men could take it down. The average B. C. L. undoubtedly feels that there is already code in the air, judging by the amount which comes in during broadcast hours in the nature of interference.

Conditions last night were not good. The static was not bad, but there seemed to be a lack of sensitiveness to the air which one always finds when the distant stations come through. I could hear the whistles of many stations, but was unable to clear but few of them into music.

After looking all around for something of interest which I could put under the category of long distance, I had to give it up in disgust. In coming back to WEEI's U. S. Navy Band program, there was much to be thankful for, so we simply sat back and enjoyed ourselves in spite of the poor receiving conditions.

DOWNTOWN BUILDING BOUGHT BY WOMAN

The instrument for you—if you are particular

You will surely find it in this beautiful line of Royal radio and phonographs

THERE is an instrument in the Royal line of radio and phonographs that will not only meet your wishes for better home entertainment but also give you exactly the enjoyment you desire. Whether you want to hear the programs of the radio broadcasting stations or the most beautiful records, a Royal instrument will reproduce the tones perfectly.

Royal gave to the public, a better phonograph which thousands welcomed for its superior tone and beautiful cabinet designs. Now in Adler-Royal Neutrodyne it has simplified radio so that any one can operate it. Merely by setting the dials at certain numbers the radio stations are brought in without the discordant noises that have been associated with some types of radio. You have your choice of two different styles. Set 201 A operates with the usual "A" storage battery. Set 199 operates on dry cells.

You will be only fair to yourself if you examine the Royal line and compare it with all others in quality of workmanship, tone reproduction, and price.

Royal instruments may be bought on the easy payment plan—if desired.

HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trombley of Sharon, Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont.—"I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and bearing-down pains. I saw an advertisement in the newspaper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped these bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way. I have so much faith in the Vegetable Compound that I keep it on hand all of the time and recommend it whenever I have the opportunity."—Mrs. LEWIS TROMBLEY, Sharon, Vermont.

Glad to Help Others

"I had pains in my back and sides for many months, and my work would have to be left undone at those times. My sister told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing her, so I tried it, and from the third bottle I was well and every one thought I looked better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial."—MABEL HARTMANN, 1821 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. ECKENER MAY BE ENVOY TO AMERICA

Berlin, Nov. 22 (I.N.S.).—A quiet but substantial boom is under way in certain official and business quarters for appointment of Dr. Hugo Eckener as the next ambassador to the United States.

The hero of the trans-Atlantic delivery of the ZR-3 to the United States will arrive as a conquering hero when the liner Combus docks at Bremen Sunday. He will be feted by national and municipal officials, cheered by an adoring populace and entertained with banquets, receptions and parades.

The wish to honor him by giving him the diplomatic post at Washington probably will be touched on when President Franz Ebert entertains the returning hero at luncheon Wednesday.

His feat, say his friends, was worth more to Germany than many years of propaganda. They claim Dr. Eckener has the tact, skill in negotiations, personal charm and straightforwardness required in dealing with America. Besides, he is known as a keen business man.

PRISONER IN POOR SHAPE IS RELEASED

William I. Henderson, charged with larceny of about $1,000 from the Salem Merchants' National Bank, where he was a messenger, appeared in the Federal District Court in such poor physical condition that he was released on his own recognizance pending hearing of his case by the Grand Jury.

PLAN TO LIMIT OPIUM OUTPUT TO NEEDS

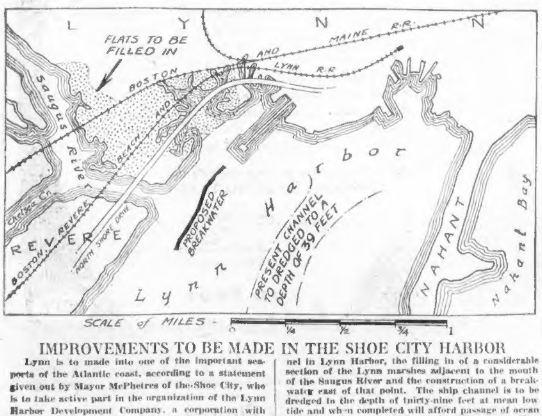
Geneva, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Sir Malcolm Delevinge of the English delegation, submitted to the International Opium Conference today the report of the business committee, with the explanation that it had been prepared after differences of opinion had developed.

The report, he said, provided for the appointment of two committees to consider the propositions in the draft project prepared by the League of Nations advisory committee, and which would be the basis of the conference's work.

One of these committees would discuss limitation of production of the raw material to medical and scientific needs. The other would frame the necessary amendments to The Hague opium convention. Six sub-committees also will be appointed.

Alluding to the endeavor made last night by Representative Porter of Pennsylvania, head of the American delegation, to enlarge the scope of the conference so as to permit examinations of all aspects of the opium problem, Sir Malcolm said he recognized that apprehensions existed whether some questions might not be excluded. He insisted, however, that the committee's report follow closely the wording of the assembly resolution authorizing the convocation of the conference.

PLAN TO MAKE LYNN BIG SEAPORT



IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE IN THE SHOE CITY HARBOR

Lynn is to made into one of the important seaports of the Atlantic coast, according to a statement given out by Mayor McPheires of the Shoe City, who is to take active part in the organization of the Lynn Harbor Development Company, a corporation with resources of $5,000,000, next week. Big financial interests are back of the new organization, the United States Steel Corporation, the Henry Ford companies and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, being mentioned as those principally concerned. So soon as the financing of the company is effected, contracts are to be let for the dredging of the main ship channel in Lynn Harbor, the filling in of a considerable section of the Lynn marshes adjacent to the mouth of the Saugus River and the construction of a breakwater east of that point. The ship channel is to be dredged to the depth of thirty-nine feet at mean low tide and when completed will afford passage of ocean steamers of large type proceeding into Lynn Harbor and docking. Passage from Boston Light into the harbor can be effected in a few hours. The Standard Oil Company is planning to erect huge storage tanks on the reclaimed marshland and to make the site its main centre of distribution for this section of New England.

ASK QUICK ACTION ON CHARGES

East Boston's State Representatives Say Suspicion Must Be Lifted

State Representatives from the East Boston district joined today in demanding that the authorities immediately make public the name of one of their number whose alleged complicity in an extortion plot is under investigation.

Their demand was made to clear the names of the innocent ones upon whom suspicion may have been cast by references to "an East Boston legislator," in stories of the plot.

MAY GET EVIDENCE.

The East Boston representatives are J. Frederick Curtin, Timothy F. Donovan, Thomas A. Winston and Robert Dinsmore.

The grand jury is expected to be given evidence of extortion on a large scale in the mulcting of offenders convicted and sentenced to serve jail sentences in the Superior Court.

The investigation, which already involves five men and promises to involve many more, is the result of the story of Harry Byer, South End storekeeper, who declares he paid $300 to a man he thought was a district attorney, to save himself from jail.

DEMAND NAMES.

Byer made his arrangements through a State Representative and a Representative-elect, it is charged. Later he was sentenced in spite of payment of the bribe money.

The Noddle Island legislators pointed out that as long as publication of the names must be made soon anyway, it is best for all that they be made public now.

District Attorney O'Brien announced that he was going to rid the city of its "parasitical politicians" before he was through with his investigation.

Buyer, who lives in Arlington, today declared that he paid the bribe to save his daughter, Ruth, from the shame of the prosecution.

SALESMAN HELD FOR $85,000 DIAMOND THEFT

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 22 (I.N.S.).—After being questioned for more than twelve hours, Herman Sagman, New York jewelry salesman, was arrested today and charged with grand larceny, following the disappearance of $85,000 worth of unset diamonds from his room in the Hotel Seneca.

HOLIDAY DINNER CHEAPER

Turkey Will Be Cheaper, but Price of "Fixins" Goes Up for Many Reasons

Among the things to be thankful for, you may list a reduction in the cost of the traditional Thanksgiving Day dinner.

Fowl and vegetables have taken a tumble this Autumn so that it will cost about $9.85 for the turkey, cranberries, squash, turnips, onions, pies and fruit that make up the holiday feast for a family of six. Last year the same meal would have cost $11.64.

However, there were times when the cost was far lower. In 1914, for instance, the hypothetical dinner could have been bought for $5.44 and it would have cost only $4.39 back in 1904.

TURKEY CHEAPER.

The Faneuil Hall market predicts that turkey will sell at about 45 cents a pound, 10 cents cheaper than last year. Choise fowl are about 38 cents this year in comparison to 42 cents last. Ducks have not changed materially, but geese will sell at about seven cents lower than last year, for 35 cents.

Vegetables are cheaper than they have been for years. It is estimated that on the staple produce usually associated with Thanksgiving a family of six would save as much as a dollar over last year on vegetables alone.

The recent cold snap has hurt the celery market and the cranberries. But these always go up at this season in anticipation of the holiday demand. Cranberries have jumped from 18 cents a quart to 25 cents. Celery has gone to 35 cents a bunch from 30 cents last week.

A government quarantine on grapes will stop the import of Spanish Malagas, common at Thanksgiving, and force people to accept as a substitute the Emperors, grown in California. These will be more expensive, perhaps as high as 35 cents a pound.

Of course if you're going to get your dinner today for $9.85 you mustn't plan on green peas at $4 a peck and avocadoes at 60 cents each.

BUY BETTER FODD NOW.

Mr. Rice, who has been with one firm at Faneuil Hall Market for twenty years, says that a lot of people have an exaggerated idea of the increase in food prices because they buy much better food today.

In 1904 very few people had celery at their festal board. It was not listed among the market staples. Green peas at this time of year were practically unheard of. Nor did they thing of hothouse tomatoes for a salad. People who say that food prices have quadrupled since 1904 are counting on some of these things. The Faneuil Hall Market prices show the staples to have increased about double in twenty years.

A comparative price list follows:

CLEARED OF KILLING MAN HE GAVE LIFT

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 22.—William Thiessen of Troy today was exonerated of any criminal responsibility for the death of Joseph Kelly of Williamstown, Mass., by Coroner Curtis. Thiessen shot and killed Kelly during a fight on the road between this city and Bennington, Vt.

The police said Kelly and his two companions, William Timothy of Adams, Mass., and Thomas Graney of Brooklyn, had been drinking, and their car was wrecked.

Thiessen, accompanied by Thomas Smith and Katherine Smith, drove past the wreck and offered the men a ride to Troy. During the ride Graney charged Kelly and Timothy had robbed him. They became noisy and were using objectionable language.

ADVICE IS THIRD RAIL; KILLS OFF FRIENDS

Use at your own risk—ADVICE.

Advice is the third rail on which many friendships have died sudden deaths. The friend, presumably dear, who gives gratuitous advice, is in the perilous position of one who powders her nose with a high explosive while standing over a bonfire.

Advice is bad for everybody but children.

That is the ADVICE of Dr. Gregory Stragnell, one competent to advise, if any one really is. Adults must beware of advising one another, he says.

Advice is a "drug on the market" actually. It frequently drugs the recipient into loss of his own personality.

Yet advice never seems particularly offensive when it comes from an impersonal source, for example from people who write advice columns of one sort or another. You don't see the advisers, and the adviser doesn't see you.

And advice is not unpleasant when it takes the form of "tips" on a subject or a desire near to your heart, as in the case of the famous banker, Otto Kahn, talking on "Success" at the Harvard Club.

Napoleon, even after he had left Josephine for another lady, could not resist making her still more unhappy by writing her the advice not to spend too much money and not to get fat. Good advice, too. Besides children, some women need advice, particularly stout damsels who affect plaids this season and imagine they look fragile as Camille on her death bed. But then——

Agreed, that advice on a wholesale scale is not disagreeable and that at retail it is terrible. Then Dr. Strangell, a well-known psychiatrist, will tell why all of us hate advice and why we should hate it.

"Often the person who advises you wants to be in your shoes. He—or she wants to be like you, to live out your life in the fullest detail. That giving of advice creates a fantasy in which he or she is able to do this.

"The person who gives advice wants to show his potency—man or woman. That person wants to maintain a domination. Like the father and son, or mother and daughter relation."

FARM MEASURES TO BE PUSHED AT ONCE

Washington, Nov. 22.—Senator Capper of Kansas, a leader of the farm bloc, declared today after a conference with President Coolidge, that such legislation as the newly created Agricultural Commission recommends will be pushed for action at the coming short session of Congress. Capper believes this legislation can be disposed of in time to prevent the necessity of an extra session for this purpose alone.

Man with $1,000 Who Sought Arrest Sent to Psychopathic

After four hours of following Patrolmen Elliott and others of the East Dedham street station, a man giving the name of Andrew Burke of Needham, finally got his continually-expressed wish to be arrested.

"I've got $1,000 in my pocket and I want to be pinched," was Andrew's plea.

At the Psychopathic Hospital, where he is being held for observation, it was found he was telling the truth so far as the money was concerned.

SCORES JURY IN MURDER CASE AS "SOFT"

The action of a jury in the Suffolk Superior Court in returning a verdict of manslaughter in the case of two negroes who shot and killed a restaurant worker during the hold-up was seen today by Assistant District Attorney George Alpert as an indication that "you can literally get away with murder in Suffolk County."

Both prisoners, Walter Jennings and Edward Sheafe, had confessed and it was said that they had sought to plead guilty to second degree murder but were not allowed to do so. They were tried for murder and the jury after deliberating for seven hours convicted them on the lesser charge.

"In my opinion this was the clearest case of first degree murder on record," said Mr. Alpert. "The verdict is the most outrageous one ever rendered in this State. The prisoners, armed with a revolver and a blackjack, had entered the Albion Cafe on Albion street intending to rob. Joseph Duarte was alone in the place.

"They told him to throw up his hands and he refused. Then he hurled a small hand-stone through the window to attract attention. As he did so he was shot dead.

"The defense was that the men had not intended to kill, but only frighten their victim. I am at a loss to account for the jury's verdict. It means that a man can go to your home or your office, armed with a revolver and shoot and kill you and they get a manslaughter verdict.

"If the statutes of the Commonwealth designed for the protection of the public are not to be sustained by juries justice becomes a mockery.

"This is a real miscarriage of justice. The jury must have been swayed by the fact that one of the prisoners has a wife and four children, with another youngster expected shortly."

RUM PIRATES HELD SHIP FOR 3 WEEKS

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 22.—That the four-masted British schooner Veronica was under command of a band of armed liquor pirates for three weeks before it was deserted and left drifting, a cripple of the seas crying for help, was reported here when the craft was towed into port.

The master of the schooner and the two supercargoes refused to talk, but the mate, a Scotchman who claimed years of service on the seven seas, told a story of modern pirates, compared to whom, he said, Oriental pirates of the China Sea with whom he had come into contact were "gentlemen."

BOARDED BY PIRATES.

According to the mate, the Veronica was boarded October 24 off Montauk Point, Long Island, by fifteen men who came ostensibly to purchase liquor with which he said the craft was loaded. When they were aboard, the mate related, the men produced revolvers and subdued the Veronica's crew.

Taking complete charge of their prize the hijackers proceeded to conduct a wholesale liquor business with small craft, the mate said, until nearly all the cargo was sold.

KEPT UNDER GUARD.

While the pirates were in command, it was said, the officers were kept locked in the chain locker and the crew was forced under threat of violence to assist in disposing of the cargo. Every night, it was reported, the entire crew was locked in a compartment and kept under guard until morning.

Then, after crippling the engines of the Veronica, smashing her compass, chronometer and other navigating instruments, the pirates went over the side as casually as they had arrived.

The mate said that the Veronica drifted about for three days, her officers unable to take their bearings, until flares and rockets they sent up every night were seen by the liner President Harding. At that time they were about one hundred miles off Cape Sable.

ONLY LIQUOR LEFT.

When the Veronica arrived here it was reported that not a drop of water remained aboard and that the supply of provisions was very low. Champagne and whiskey had been used by the crew to assuage their thirst in the absence of water, it was said.

The crew of the schooner, mostly foreigners who could speak but little English, said that they had shipped on the Veronica four months ago in Bremen, ostensibly for a cruise to Melilla, Morocco. They said, however, that they had not seen land since the day of their sailing. They reported enormous hardships at the hands of the pirates.

When the craft dropped anchor customs officers sealed up the remaining liquor.

DIES AS SHE ENDS LONG JOURNEY

Mother, Found Dead on Train, Had Crossed U. S. to See Children

At the end of a cross country journey to spend the holiday with her son and daughter, Mrs. Minnie L. Selfridge, seventy-two-year-old wealthy widow of San Francisco, was found dead in her berth on the Federal Express in South Station today.

The discovery was made by the daughter, Mrs. Catherine F. Kellard of No. 2804 Thirty-fourth street, Washington, D. C., who had been picked up by Mrs. Selfridge at Washington for the visit to George Selfridge of Haddon Hall, Commonwealth avenue, and Berkeley streets, Boston.

Mrs. Selfridge, whose home was at No. 2618 California avenue, San Francisco, had been in poor health throughout the trip, according to her daughter, but was not seriously ill at any time.

Medical Examiner Timothy Leary was notified.

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Minnie L. Selfridge, who died on the Federal express today near Boston, was a member of an old San Francisco family. She was the widow of Edwin A. Selfridge, who was president of the Selfridge Holding Company here. Her son, Edwin A. Selfridge, Jr., plans to leave today for Boston to return with the body.

UPHOLD CONVICTION OF ITALIAN EDITOR

New York, Nov. 22.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld the conviction of Carlo Tresca, radical leader, who was sentenced to Atlanta prison last November for sending obscene literature through the mails. The sentence was for one year and one day.

Tresca was editor of Il Martello, an Italian anti-Fascist weekly published here. The complainant against him was the Italian ambassador to this country. Articles on birth control translated from the Italian were published in Tresca's weekly.

AUTOS NEEDED TO CARRY 500 VETERANS TO PLAY

Motor transportation is needed to carry 500 disabled veterans of the World War in various hospitals of Greater Boston to the Tremont Theatre and return the afternoon of December 2. Motorists should communicate by telephone or letter with Mrs. L. Lovell Little, No. 739 Boylston street, Room 202; phone B. B. 10815; or with Harold D. Bornstein, No. 664 Commonwealth avenue, Kenmore 3256.

WIND GOING BACK TO WEST TONIGHT

Washington, Nov. 22.—The Weather Bureau today issued the following storm warning:

"Advisory 10:30 a. m.—Warnings changed to northeast Sandy Hook to Nantucket. Disturbance over eastern North Carolina, moving northeastward. Will increase in intensity and cause strong east winds and gales this afternoon, backing to west tonight."

WEATHER DELAYS AERIAL BOMBING OF WARSHIP

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 22.—Tests of the ability of the hull of the super dreadnaught Washington to withstand aerial bombing have been suspended temporarily because of inclement weather. The experiments which have been in progress for two days will be resumed on the first clear day, it was said, at the naval base.

MRS. BUZZI'S NEW TRIAL WILL OPEN ON DEC. 1

New York, Nov. 22.—District Attorney McGeehan of Bronx County announced today that the second trial of Mrs. Anna Buzzi for murder in the first degree would begin December 1. Mrs. Buzzi was convicted of killing Frederick Schneider, a contractor, in his auto. She was sentenced to death. The Court of Appeals ordered a new trial.

REDS TO STAND BACK OF LANDIS IN ELECTION

Cincinnati, Nov. 21.—President August Herrmann announced today that the Cincinnati National League club would stand by K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, and John Heydler, president of the National League, in the election of officers in the coming league meeting.

"The Cincinnati club is for Landis and Heydler," said Herrmann. "Many eastern critics have had Cincinnati lined up as an adversary of Heydler in the coming league meeting. Others have taken it for granted that Cincinnati was against Judge Landis. All erroneous. We are for Heydler as we are for Judge Landis, benefit of the game."

TOP SPANISH JOCKEY WON THIRTY RACES

Madrid, Nov. 24.—A review of the 1924 racing season in Spain shows that 283 races were run at Madrid, Seville, Aranjuez, Barcelona and San Sebastian. The purses distributed totalled 1,338,750 pesetas, of which 166,350 went to steeplechases. The horses that participated numbered 1,347.

Count Cimera was the largest money winner with 256,000 pesetas. Marquis Llano San Javier was second with 136,000 and King Alfonso third with 133,000. The premier jockey was J. E. Forestier with 30 victories out of 51 mounts. Coke was second with 24 victories out of 55 mounts.

MEMORIAL TO HAUGHTON PLANNED AT HARVARD

A memorial to Percy D. Haughton, famous Harvard football coach and at the time of his death a few weeks ago head coach of Columbia, will be built at Harvard. The plan to put such a project into operation was started when a number of alumni closely associated with Haughton either as classmates or as his pupils on Harvard teams mailed a thousand letters today.

"We believe that most of the men who were associated with him will wish to share in this tribute. It should serve as an inspiration to future teams and as a permanent remembrance of one who stood preeminently for the best type of clean, manly sport," states the communication sent to all members of Haughton's class and the football squads during the years he was head coach there.

B. C. High Cops

Boston College High looked better than any time this Fall when it was victorious over the Brookline High School team, 13 to 0, at the Brookline High Athletic Field. The Old Gold and Maroon eleven played heads-up football, while Brookline High displayed the poorest football of the Fall.

MISS TAYLOR IN HUB; 'WELL!' SAYS DEMPSEY

Persistent rumors that have linked the names of Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor, the movie star, following their reported engagement last year, have leaped to the front again with the presence of Miss Taylor in Boston during Dempsey's theatrical appearance here.

However, neither principal in the romance, which is said to have been blasted by the appearance of Miss Taylor's husband, Kenneth Peacock, a Philadelphia bank clerk, appear to know of the other's presence here.

Miss Taylor, a guest at the Copley-Plaza since the day of Dempsey's arrival in Boston, declines to discuss the coincidence of their visits here at the same time.

"Miss Taylor here! Well, Well!" ejaculates Dempsey, when newspapermen inform him to that effect—and that's all he ejaculates.

Miss Taylor, who rises along toward noon, has, so far, eluded curious persons and by an arrangement with the hotel, does not appear at the desk to take or leave her key.

CUBS BACK HEYDLER FOR RE-ELECTION

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Support to John Heydler, president of the National League Baseball Clubs, for re-election to that office when the National League magnates assemble in their annual meeting at New York, December 9, has been pledged by President Veeck of the Chicago Nationals, who has expressed the belief that Mr. Heydler will be unanimously chosen as head of the league.

"I know that the Pittsburgh, the St. Louis, the Cincinnati, the Philadelphia and the Brooklyn clubs are for him, because these men talked things over informally with me," he said.

CALIFORNIA MUST WIN TO MEET NOTRE DAME

Chicago, Nov. 22.—The possibility of Southern California meeting Notre Dame in the Pasadena football game on New Year's day depends on the result of the game in Los Angeles today between Southern California and Idaho, according to Gwynn Wilson, graduate manager of athletics of the University of Southern California. If the Californians win decisively they will be selected by the committee in charge to meet Notre Dame, he said. Wilson is here to witness the Notre Dame-Northwestern game.

BILL GLENNON SCOUTS BOSTON COLLEGE TEAM

Bill Glennon, Holy Cross flash, will not play in the game today against Canisius College at Worcester. Instead the brilliant Purple player will look over the Boston College-Vermont game at Braves Field with Carton, another regular on the H. C. outfit.

SOMERVILLE BOY PICKED TO LEAD ST. ANSELM'S

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 22.—Vincent Cronin of Somerville, Mass., today was elected captain of St. Anselm's Prep football team for next year. Cronin graduated from Somerville High and played quarterback on that eleven.

Hardy kicked off for B. C., Tarpey making 20 yards from Vermont's 10-yard line. Tarpey made a yard. Cayward fumbled Tarpey's forward pass but the ball was recovered by Chapman on the Vermont 45-yard line. Foley intercepted a forward pass from Tarpey on B. C.'s 45-yard line. Neither teams forward pass attack was successful.

Dower's punt from mid-field was downed by Elbery on Vermont's one-yard line, but the B. C. line was unable to block Yarnell's punt. Lawton punted 60 yards. Dower quickly returned it to Vermont's 20-yard line as the period ended.

Score—B. C. 27, Vermont 7.

FOURTH PERIOD

A forward pass on a line plunge gave Vermont a first down. A long forward, Tarpey to Smith, gave Vermont the ball on B. C.'s 38-yard line. Tarpey kicked to Crean on B. C.'s 12-yard line. An exchange of punts gave Vermont the ball at mid-field. Two forwards, Tarpey to Yarnell, gave Vermont the ball on B. C.'s 32-yard line. Crean intercepted the third try on his own 20-yard line.

Bill Cronin circled left tackle for 50 yards, being thrown off-side on the Vermont 30-yard line, after he had shaken off half a dozen pursuers.

A forward pass, Dower to Whalen, brought the ball to the 10-yard line. Murphy went through centre for seven. Dower went over the remaining distance for a touchdown. Murphy failed to kick goal.

Score—B. C. 33, Vermont 7.

Lawton kicked off to Dower on B. C.'s 5-yard line, who ran it to the 38-yard line before being downed by Yarnell. Higgins and Dower made it first down.

Dower made 8 more and Higgins 4. The ball was now on Vermont's 24-yard line. On the last play Fitzgerald made a run of 20 yards to Vermont's 24-yard line.

Final score—B. C. 33, Vermont 7.

Electric Clock to Aid Hockey Fans at the Arena

Boston hockey fans will be favored with a huge electric clock, to operate during the progress of professional and amateur games. This clock, four feet in diameter and carrying hands two feet long, will be suspended from the wall near the lobby end of the rink. It will be in plain view of every section of the Arena.

The clock will be operated by electricity from the official timer's box in mid ice. This innovation is bound to make a hit with fans. They can keep in constant touch with the time left to play. It should provide more excitement, as a close game waxes warm and playing time nearly ended. The clock will be used for the first time at the Boston Bruins-Saskatoon Sheiks professional match at the Arena Thursday night.

PENN STATE AND NEBRASKA ON SYRACUSE CARD

(By International News Service.)

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Nebraska—Penn State—Colgate.

These will be the three big games dished up to Syracuse University football fans in 1925, it was forecast recently.

Arrangements have been made for a renewal of the Syracuse-Penn State football contract, which expired after a three-year life with the game at Beaver Field. Bezdek and his Lions will play Meehan's eleven in Archbold Stadium.

Because Nebraska could not make arrangements to come here this season, the annual battle of the two machines was dropped for the time being, and negotiations were effected for another engagement in 1925. The Boston College game took the place of the Lincoln Cornhuskers this season. Colgate, of course, will invade Syracuse for the annual classic.

Syracuse will play no games in New York next year, unless it is another game with Columbia. Graduate Manager Thurston is of the opinion that a team playing in New York and meeting an eleven which is not in the metropolitan district is a barnstorming combination.

CHICAGO FIGHTS FOR TITLE IN CONFERENCE

New York, Nov. 22.—Intercollegiate football will begin the opening notes of its swan song for the 1924 season this afternoon with the meeting of many rivals on many and widely separated fields. The Harvard-Yale game at New Haven is only one of a series of great games in prospect in the East.

In the Middle West, Chicago will fight for its first big ten championship in many years when it faces Wisconsin. Illinois, dying hard, will take on Ohio State; Indiana clashes with Purdue, and Iowa will play Michigan. The final conference rating will be determined by these meetings. The unbeaten Notre Dame also takes on a conference foe, Northwestern, and must win handily to maintain its great prestige. The Drake-Iowa State game is another big timer for this afternoon.

In the Far West, California takes on Stanford, its traditional rival, in a game that will determine the Coast championship, while Nebraska will endeavor to improve its position in the Missouri Valley Conference, at the expense of Kansas Aggies.

The East also runs strongly to the rival versus rival proposition, the schedule including games between Colgate and Syracuse, Lafayette and Lehigh and the so-called "Little Quakers," Swarthmore and Haverford.

The South's best game will be between Mississippi Aggies and Florida, with the Mississippi College-Mississippi University affair a close second.

NOTRE DAME GUESTS AT CORNELL PENNSY GAME

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 22.—Coach Knute Rockne and his Notre Dame football squad will be guests at the Cornell-Pennsylvania game in Philadelphia on Thanksgiving Day. The squad will entrain here immediately after practice on Wednesday, November 26, and go to Philadelphia. From there they will go to Pittsburgh to meet Carnegie Tech on Forbes Field the following Saturday. The Carnegie Tech game will officially close the 1924 schedule.

H.-Y. Soccer Battle

Harvard's freshman soccer team met the Yale first-year men this morning in the final contest of the season at New Haven.

Neither team has shown exceptional ability this year. Harvard has a last minute 2-1 defeat of last year to avenge.

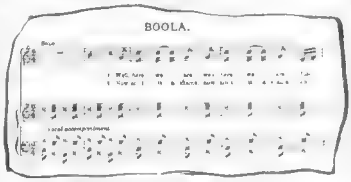
THE BEST YALE SONGS

BOOLA

Well, here we are, well, here we are!
Just watch us rolling up a score.



We'll leave poor Harvard behind so far,
They won't want to play us any more.

Chorus:
We'll roll the score so very high,
That you will hear them sigh:
Well—a Boo-la, Boo, Boo-la, Boo-la, Boo, Boo-la,
Boo-la, Boo-la, Boo.
Now, ain't it a shame, now ain't it a shame,
To do fair Harvard up so bad?
We've done it before, we'll do it once more,
And they'll feel very, very sad.

We'll roll, etc.

DEAR OLD YALE

Bright college years, with pleasure rife,
The shortest, gladdest years of life;
How swiftly are ye gliding by!
Oh, why doth time so quickly fly?
The seasons come, the seasons go,
The earth is green, or white with snow,
But time and change shall nought avail,
To break the friendships formed at Yale.
In after life, should troubles rise
To cloud the blue of sunny skies,
How bright will seem, thro' memory's haze
The happy, golden, bygone days!
Oh, let us strive that ever we
May let these words our watch-cry be,
Where'er upon life's sea we sail:
"For God, for Country, and for Yale!"

FAIR HARVARD

Fair Harvard! thy sons to thy jubilee throng,
And with blessings surrender thee o'er.
By these festival rites, from the age that is past
To the age that is waiting before,
O relic and type of our ancestors' worth
That has long kept their memory warm.
First flower of their wilderness, star of their night,
Calm rising through change and through storm!
Farewell! be thy destinies onward and bright!
To thy children the lesson still give
With freedom to think, and with patience to bear
And for right ever bravely to live.
Let not moss-covered error moor thee at its side
As the world on truth's current glides by!
Be the herald of light and the bearer of love
Till the stock of the Puritans die.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE BRUTE AND THE POWDER PUFF

By J. P. WOOLFOLK

VAIL BURTON was a by-product of steel. One knew it when he observed the uncompromising jaw and the cold glint which sometimes shined through usually warm blue eyes.

If there had never been any steel, there would never have been any Vail, for Vail's father was one of those silly old individuals of an age gone by who believed it a crime to marry without the proper wherewithal to support a wife.

And, so concentrated had Vail's father been upon the consecrated proposition of gathering together enough money to honorably ask Vail's mother to marry him that he had gathered together eventually enough money to support all of the wives in town if he had so wished—which he most certainly did not.

Brought Up on Steel

Vail had been brought up on steel, so to speak. He had been told about steel on his father's knee during long evenings, just as other children are told about little Rollo and his hoops, or little Red Riding Hood and her penchant for wolves.

And Vail loved steel even as a child, more than anything else in the world. Consequently, it was quite characteristic of him that he should take Cyldra out to view the gigantic new Trevvor Building under construction.

"Burton steel only used in th construction of this building," read a sign high up on the steel framework already erected.

Cyldra, mindful of mamma's instructions to "get young Burton by any means whatsoever," was trying her best to look intelligent and interested as Vail pointed out to her the various masterpieces in structural steel being woven into the building by skilled workmen.

In her arms she held tightly the powder puff—as Vail called the wishy-washy looking little Chow which Cyldra affected much as she affected her expensive wrist watch and her Parisian perfumes.

Pretty Picture

They made quite a pretty picture, standing there beside the great, grim framework of the colossal building. Vail, slim and straight and hard, erect as an Indian, forgetting for the moment the girl at his side as he viewed the perfected pieces of Burton steel being hoisted one by one into place.

And sharply, in contrast to Vail and the building which seemed intangibly like Vail, the girl at his side. . . . Cyldra!

Suppose that an artist had painted the most perfect picture of a beautiful girl that had ever been seen; presume a sculptor to have worked beside him upon a faultless girl figure, and then imagine Mother Nature watching over their shoulders, and finally stepping up impatiently to say:

"Boys, you don't know what a beautiful girl looks like," then imagine Mother Nature creating a girl-woman so beautiful that there could be no real reason for not eating her—Cyldra! Gowned by Franzhezi, perfumed by Chautand—related to enough millions to buy the White House, yes, and even to pay for the scandal that would follow; working, now, to draw Vail and his millions into the family.

Clydra, who radiated loveliness as does a sharp jewel lying upon white velvet, who rendered Vail non compos mentis when she was with him, and caused him to stop his shaving sometimes to examine himself in startled unbelief in the mirror.

Cyldra, a complete triumph of the age she lived in; good for not one single solitary conceivable thing on the face of the earth, useless entirely, but desirable quite.

Often Vail wondered helplessly what he saw in her. There was a poignant, sharply sweet something about her which scratched persistently at the armor of his manhood as a jeweler scratches a piece of gold to find out whether or not it is merely plated.

Suddenly Cyldra shrieked in terror and pointed upward.

"Dodo, Dodo, Dodo!" she wailed. Vail followed the line of vision indicated by a pink finger.

Dog in Danger

"Huh!" he chuckled, "the powder puff's going bye-bye!"

"You brute!" said Cyldra stamping a jewelled slipper. "Oh! you awful, callous brute—he'll be killed. Stop everything—No! don't stop anything oh! if it jerks! . . ."

The workmen had seen what happened now. The little Chow dog, set for a moment, had wandered away and jumped upon a steel beam just a moment before the signal to hoist had been given.

Up toward the clouds he had been borne, until now he was simply a speck on a steel beam, about ten stories above the ground; hanging saupended in mid-air, poking his soft nose in canine terror over the edge of the beam. Vail was all contrition now.

"I'll have them lower the thing," he said, starting away.

"Stop" screamed Cyldra, "you can't; you mustn't. They might jar and he'd fall off, and if anything happens to Dodo I'll die. I'll simply die—you must get him yourself, you will have to get him your——"

"What!" snapped Vail, his jaw tightening, "you really mean that I risk my life to get that fool—"

Called a Coward

"You coward! Oh! you miserable coward—you baseless brute!" cried Cyldra, not wholly unmindful of the crowd that was gathering about them, and the delightful account there would be in the papers in the morning of the whole affair, an account, no doubt, in which her name would be pleasantly linked.

Never had Cyldra felt more confident of eventually landing Vail than at that moment. All women, sophisticated to the ultimate, she was quite cognizant of the fact that if Vail were to risk his life to save her dog, by the irresistible law of conventional banalities by which she lived, he should almost automatically propose afterwards.

Watching the crowd out of the corner of her eyes, she began to upbraid him again.

"Are you going to let poor little Dodo kill himself, you brute! If you don't save him I will," she raised her arms prettily upward toward the dog on the beam many feet above.

"You really mean that you want me to risk my life to save that barking powder-puff? I've had a little experience on structural steel work, but I'm not dressed for that sort of thing. These shoes might slip, or these clothes catch in something and——"

"Then you're afraid!" she snapped. Several in the crowd caught the words. For a moment Vail hesitated, but only for a moment after that.

Striding over to the man working the donkey engine, he gave short, crisp instructions and tendered a bill of large denomination. In a moment more Vail was soaring aloft at the end of a heavy chain which he had grasped with his hand and caught one of his feet in.

Up Ten Stories

Up, up, up, ten stories. A sudden quiet came over the building and the people on the ground below as the man shot aloft. The workmen stopped to watch him, even the traffic on the street ceased to move as drivers with one accord stopped their vehicles to watch.

At the tenth story the hoisting engine suddenly stopped the progress upward, but it was apparent that Vail could not reach the dog; a full ten feet separated the first hoisting line which carried the dog aloft and the second one which supported it.

An uneasy murmur swept through the crowd. Cyldra was watching them out of the corner of her eyes. It was wonderful, superb, quite the most tremendous moment of her life. It would be a social triumph of the season—nothing else would be talked about at bridge teas for months.

Suddenly a half cheer struggled from the throats of the attentive watchers, for the man at the end of the chain, high in the air, was beginning deliberately to swing back and forth.

Little by little he gained momentum until a swing carried him far enough out to reach over and snatch the dog from the beam and then a gasp of horror swept through the watchers. Several women in the crowd sank quietly to the ground in a faint, for Vail's foot had slipped from the chain and he had fallen several feet, but had managed to grasp the end of the chain with one hand.

With infinite care, so as not to cause a jar, the donkey-engine tender began swiftly to lower the man to the ground.

Not a soul breathed as with sickening speed the chair was dropped floor after floor with the man hanging on by the other hand. A moment more and he was safe upon the ground again. Straight to Cyldra Vail walked, his eyes ablaze.

Into the Car

"Here's your powder puff," he said simply, "and, by the way, Miss Trevvor, I think that a woman who will ask a man to risk his life to save a fool dog ought to be confined where she could not possibly endanger the lives of the people.

"I never want to lay my eyes on you again as long as I live."

With that he handed her into the limousine, said:

"Take Miss Trevvor home, James," closed the door of the car on the white-faced girl and turned back to talk to the engineer in charge of the donkey engine, whose [illegible] undoubtedly saved him.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE

By S. Vitt

TODAY'S cross-word puzzle with its balanced square design should stump several puzzle fans. [illegible] isn't really difficult but there's a short progression of simple but puzzling words in the right half.

A "tip" to today's will be published Monday. Here is the promised "tip" on yesterday's ticker. No. [illegible] Horizontal—"Amorous glances"—is Ogles, and No. 16 Vertical—"Bartering"—is Trading.

Now try today's. You ought to have at least twenty of its words in five minutes—they're so simple. Can you solve it?

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when turkeys are becoming worried and ninety-nine per cent. of them wish they were horses.

NO matter how cool a turkey tries to keep he knows that he'll lose his head in a couple of weeks.

HE may have tonsilitis, but the hatchet will cure all of his throat troubles.

TURKEYS celebrate Thanksgiving, too. They're thankful that they aren't cats and have to be killed nine times.

ONE turkey's last words were "I regret that I have but one life to give to my master's ice box.

A GOBBLER'S idea of Heaven is to belong to a family of vegetarians.

ONE bird even chewed up the family calendar so that they wouldn't know when to kill him.

ONE guy found his turkey going around the barn yard trying to disguise himself as an airedale.

EVERY time the farmer came out in the yard the turkey would crawl in the dog kennel and begin barking.

IT certainly fooled the farmer, because he bought a license for the turkey and killed the dog.

ONE guy has had his turkey on a diet for three weeks so that he'll fit in the oven.

THE turkey has been sleeping on the stove every night. He's rehearsing for Thanksgiving.

THE dressed rehearsal will be held next Thursday.

WHEN he sees the cook ordering cranberries he knows it's time to commence saying his prayers.

HE prays for an ostrich so that the ostrich can come and eat the hatchets and the rest of the hardware.

AT that, turkeys are better off than chickens. A turkey only has to fret during the middle of November, but a chicken worries from one week-end to the other.

HE never knows Saturday where he's going to be on Sunday.

THE turkeys all over the country are getting together and forming a religious organization. They want Lent switched from the latter part of March to the latter part of November.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

CERTAIN diseases are sneaks. They creep in like a thief in the night and rob their victim of health and happiness before he knows it.

This is strikingly true of children.

Their vigorous and expanding vitality often causes them to go on romping and laughing and playing in spite of what are at first only mild and unobserved beginnings of actual disease.

It is for this reason that it is highly important occasionally, indeed at definite periods, to have this mask of vigorous vitality penetrated by a careful health examination by a competent physician.

In the first place the child should be stripped, weighed and measured. The doctor will first measure the height, then the circumference of the chest, then that of the abdomen, the circumference of the thighs and of the upper arms.

He will then examine the mouth to see if the teeth are all right and if they are being properly cared for. He will look down the throat to see whether the tonsils are normal. At the same time he will determine the existence or non-existence of adenoids—the little growths in the back part of the nose that so interfere with the taking in of air as to cause the child to breathe chiefly through the mouth.

Then the doctor will take his stethoscope, putting the double or bifurcated end into his ears and place the other over the child's chest and heart. This is to determine the actual condition, not only of the heart but of the lungs. It is surprising how often beginning diseases in these organs are discovered by this method.

Simple tests for hearing and vision will also be made.

The spine and various joints in the body will be gone over by gentle manipulation to determine whether or not there is anything wrong with them.

To make this examination easy for you and for the child and especially for the doctor, teach the child that the doctor is his friend. Teach him that he will have a great lark when the doctor goes over him. By all means do not impress him that anything formidable is about to go on. It would be both untrue and unjust.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Sometimes you can be too close to a thing to see it right. In the early stages of the war certain stocks began to soar extraordinarily—Bethlehem Steel was one of them. Time and again executives of what later became known as "War Brides" declared that their shares were being marked up beyond all reason, and it is common knowledge that many of these insiders sold out all they owned and, in some cases, went heavily short. But the shares continued to go up and up and up. Then many who had sold much lower down scrambled to get aboard.

Most Wall street professional operators are quoted as being alarmed over the spectacular advance which has been raging since the election. According to current reports, many of them have sold short. Some have already "covered" at a heavy loss, while others are vigorously fighting the market in the hope of being able to bring about a sharp relapse to enable them to square their accounts without suffering too heavy a loss.

Now, is it not just possible that these Wall Street professional speculators have been too close to the stock market to see it right?

The writer has been emphasizing for months the encouraging trend of events both in this country and abroad. The warning was repeatedly sounded that it might prove dangerous to act timidly. Courage was recommended in making business commitments. It seemed clear that everything was tending towards very notable improvement in business conditions.

No human being can foretell with certainty what the stock market may do from day to day. The current boom may burst in a week or it may be still bowling along when the chimes ring in the New Year.

But this can be said: Both domestic and foreign conditions warrant an optimistic view of the general outlook. Our railroads certainly have a brighter future than they formerly had. And many industrial corporations should also be distinctly better.

* * *

Thomas E. Wilson, the Chicago packer, was in New York this week. The bankers and he are working on plans for strengthening the company's financial structure, and it is hoped that a definite plan may be ready for announcement after the New Year. Mr. Wilson told me that, notwithstanding all that has occurred, the company in the first ten months of the year has been able to earn all its fixed charges, with something left for the stock, and earnings, he added, should be very satisfactory during the final two months of the year. Mr. Wilson is confident America is entering a period of notable prosperity.

Our big bankers are so often bitterly criticized by heads of corporations whose affairs need banking attention that it is pleasant to know that Mr. Wilson, when asked, replied, "The Chicago bankers have been most helpful and the New York bankers, too, have acted all right."

* * *

John N. Willys, buttonholed in New York this week, said that while the Willys Overland's third-quarter's earnings were poor, "our organization is in better shape, and our whole fundamental condition is in excellent shape and I believe next year will prove our best both in volume and business and in earnings." Mr. Willys, who is chairman of the export committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, returned from Europe only a few weeks ago, and he declares that there is a great future for American lower-priced cars abroad.

INVENTOR HAS OPPORTUNITY ON TICKER

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Trouble with most inventors today is that they waste their time on something for which the demand is either small or non-existant. Still others strive to invent something it would take a great deal of capital to place before the public—and capital is very skeptical about new inventions.

There is a real opportunity for the inventor who will devise a way to speed stock market quotations over the ticker so that they can be properly handled when sales run 2,000,000 shares a day or over.

These post-election stock-boom days have sadly taxed the tickers. Quotations in many instances have been far awry and some have puzzled even the most experienced tape readers. Under the circumstances, of course, all this has been unavoidable. The Stock Exchange officials frankly state they are looking for the inventor who can help them solve this problem.

Stuart W. Cramer, of Cramerton, N. C., prominent textile manufacturer and joint chairman of the National Council of American Cotton Manufacturers, says: "Cotton mill men in the North are making a good deal more of the bogey of southern competition than is justified by facts. On one point alone do I see any marked advantage in a southern location, and that is in the matter of mass production. Given a coarse yarn or a plain cloth, where the object is simply to keep the machinery going, the South is supreme. That sort of business is lost to New England.

"On fine and fancy goods, which are not of the common run, New England actually is in an advantageous position. Nearness of markets, connections with long established selling houses, high grade labor, long training in the making of particular things and in the study of the vagaries of style are big advantages which can be acquired only by years of effort. The South is working towards production of finer goods but its progress must of necessity be slow.

"It is true that we work longer hours, but the reduction in overhead thus gained when measured per yard is small. The difference in wages amounts to but a small fraction of a cent on a yard of high-grade goods. Taxes are increasing in the South, and there is not much difference on that score. There is no material variation in power cost. Applying these things to goods of extra quality on which the price is not held so closely as on staple goods, southern advatnages become minimized.

"I am not afraid for the future of the up-to-date New England mill, with modern machinery and a good manager. The northern mill which has been allowed to run down and whose machinery is obsolete is another proposition. Perhaps the greatest real advantage the South has is that its mills are newer and its equipment of the latest design."

QUOTATIONS FIRM IN GRAIN FUTURES

Chicago week-end grain futures were firm. Prices: Wheat—December, 150¼ to 150⅛; May, 158⅛ to 158⅝; July, 140. Corn—December, 113¼ to 113½; May, 119 to 119⅝; July, 120⅛. Oats—December, 52⅝; May, 58⅛ to 58¼.

Cotton Sells Off

Week-end New York cotton futures sold lower. Prices: December 23.55, off .11; January 23.75, off .11; March 24.13, off .10.

Textile Stocks Climb

Mill shares are reflecting improvement in the New England textile situation. Amoskeag, Pacific and American Woolen have stepped up production moderately. The Maine mills, helped by the 10 per cent. wage cut, will give their help more work. The Pepperell, at Biddeford, expects to run on a full-time basis. In Massachusetts the Pocasset, Lancaster and Bigelow-Harford Carpet Company have increased running schedules to 100 per cent.

Rallies from 3 to 13 points have taken place. The following table shows the advance since the election:

Total sales, Jan. 1, 1924, to date—New York, 228,705,300 shares, Boston, 4,658,544 shares.

PROFIT-TAKING IS FOLLOWED BY RALLY

In week-end New York stock market trading, extensive profit-taking combined with concerted bear selling, drove stock prices lower in early dealings, but subsequent execution of buying orders awaiting a reaction and renewed accumulation of minor shares brought about a partial recovery.

Many leading issues yielded one to two points on the early wave of selling, with U. S. Cast Iron Pipe breaking four points and Sears Roebuck six.

Prices steadied later as operations for the rise were resumed in special stocks.

Rock Island rebounded to a new high level at 46⅜ on buying credited to interests identified with the Southern Pacific. Wilson & Co. preferred jumped 7 points on reported progress in the reorganization of the packing company, while Union Bag & Paper, United Cigar Stores and Pittsburgh & West Virginia mounted 3½ to 4⅜ points.

The closing was steady. Sales approximated 900,000 shares.

In Boston Stock Exchange trading, Edison rights sold at 6, a new high; these rights made their bow on the Boston board around 3⅝. Edison also was a feature, stepping up to a fresh top on the move.

GOOSE HUNTERS ASK LIFTING OF HUNTING BAN

Cannot See How They Can Start Forest Fires Along the Ponds and Coast

Duck and goose hunters of the South Shore united today in protest against the suspension of the shooting season, which was thought advisable by State officials because of the long dry spell. A delegation was sent to call on the department of conservation.

The open season was suspended in order to keep sportsmen out of the woods and lessen the fire hazard. It is now pointed out that the open season for upland game has already expired, and that the shooting of water fowl is attended by a very negligible danger of forest fires.

Although the open season on water fowl does not end until January 1, it is pointed out that the setting in of freezing weather automatically ends the prospects of the shore gunners. An extension of the season for shooting ducks and geese would mean nothing to the sportsmen who specialize on water fowl, since all of these birds go south ahead of the Winter weather.

There is widespread dissatisfaction among ducks and goose hunters who have spent hundreds of dollars maintaining shooting stands and keeping decoys over the year. It is estimated that the annual expense of a duck stand runs from $500 to several thousand dollars, and this year the sportsmen have scarcely fired a shot.

Church Notes

Conversion of an old livery stable into a community house has been begun by the Boston Baptist Missionary Society at the junction of Hale, Green and Pitts streets, West End.

Rev. Harry Fosdick of New York will hold a "Quiet Day" for Boston ministers in the Church of the New Jerusalem, Bowdoin street, February 9.

President Nathan R. Wood of Gordon Bible College, Boston, is speaking before Baptist ministers on the virgin birth. "It is not a doctrine, but a fact," he contends.

The Rt. Rev. Arthur C. Headlam, LL. D., bishop of Gloucester, England, will address Episcopal ministers of Greater Boston in Trinity Parish Houses, Copley square, Dec. 1, at 1 p. m.

Rev. Dr. Richard Roberts of the American Presbyterian Church, Montreal, will preach at vespers, Nov. 30, in the Arlington Street Church.

Rev. John B. Lemon of Greenfield Baptist Church has issued a chart for daily Bible reading. It is being used by many congregations.

Calvary Church, Lawrence, has received a free will offering of $6,000 from an unknown giver.

The Goodrich fund of the First Parish Church of Fitchburg will be increased by the addition of $1,500. Mrs. Emma L. Humes has left $500 to the First Universalist Church of that city.

Dr. Harris F. Rall of Evanston, Ill., is the noon preacher at King's Chapel, beginning Tuesday. The School of Religion for Children is now in session Sundays at 3:30 p. m. Mrs. Ella Lyman Cabot in charge.

The Protestant churches of Reading have formed a federation, with Rev. Marion F. Ham as president.

Bishop William F. Anderson will preach Sunday morning at the fiftieth anniversary of Hyde Park M. E. Church. Rev. Dr. J. M. Shepler, superintendent of the Boston district, a former pastor, is the evening preacher.

Rev. A. D. Parker, pastor of the M. E. Church, Newtonville, will preach a Thanksgiving sermon at the Monday session of Methodist ministers in Wesleyan Hall.

"New Worlds for Old" will be discussed before Congregational ministers at their Monday morning meeting in Pilgrim Hall by Rev. Professor Kirsopp Lake of Harvard Divinity School.

Charles E. Fay of Boston will address the Common Cause Free Forum in Franklin Union Hall, Berkeley and Appleton streets, Sunday night at 8 o'clock. His subject is "Do Catholics Believe in a Union of Church and State?" The public is invited to this free lecture and debate.

The following changes among Baptist pastors are noted: Rev. Clyde W. Robbins of North Abington to Roslindale; Rev. H. V. Jenson of Newton Theological Institution to Second Church, Newton Upper Falls; Rev. W. J. Rutledge of Whitman to Trenton Street Church, East Boston; Rev. J. W. Williams of Ayer to New Brunswick; Rev. George Hinchelwood of Bradford, R. I., to North Uxbridge.

The First Baptist Church, Melrose, is having a three weeks' revival under the pastor, Rev. W. E. Woodbury, with E. W. Naftzger as singer.

Beginning in Advent, addresses will be given in St. Paul's Cathedral Tuesday noons by the Rev. John W. Suter, Jr.; Wednesdays, Rev. Allen W. Clark; Thursdays, preachers at the invitation of the committee on adult education; Fridays, Rev. Charles R. Peck.

Thousands of confirmed men and boys of the Episcopal Church will gather at the Lord's Table in their respective parishes on the first Sunday in Advent, Nov. 30. Services at St. Paul's Cathedral for this purpose are at 8 and 10 a. m.

Bishop Arthur C. Headlam of Gloucester, England, will preach at Appleton Chapel Sunday at 11 a. m. and in Trinity Church at 7:30 p. m. He will deliver the Noble lecture at Harvard University Dec. 30.

The Girls' Friendly Society of St. Paul's Cathedral is filling baskets with Thanksgiving tokens and sending them to the needy. They will have a fair in the crypt Dec. 8.

The Florida jubilee singers will furnish the music at the noon meeting of the men's brotherhood of Tremont Temple Sunday. The high school class will be entertained with music by Miss Grace Kaplum of California at their social gathering, Sunday, 2 p. m.

Rev. Charles L. Page is the Sunday morning preacher at the Free Baptist Church, Roxbury. He will speak on "Thankless or Thankful?"

The annual meeting of the daily vacation Bible schools will be held Monday in the Ford Building at 1:30 p. m.

Rev. Arthur L. Wadsworth of Pasadena will preach Sunday in Lowell Baptist churches on the work of a religious newspaper.

Every person under thirty in the Church of the New Jerusalem, Newtonville, goes to Sunday School. Classes are arranged to start with the four-year-old and include every one up to thirty.

A tablet erected as a memorial to the late Leo C. ... L. Noyes, D. D., for forty years pastor of the Broadway-Winter Hill Congregational Church, Somerville, will be unveiled with impressive exercises in the church tomorrow at 8 p. m. The principal address will be made by Rev. Charles F. Carter, D. D., of Hartford, Conn., a life-long friend. Mrs. Margaret Noyes Johnson of Auburndale, a niece, will unveil the tablet. Louis L. Leach is the sculptor.

This property, now being developed, offers a rare opportunity to obtain a site for a home, on high ground, with extensive view over City and Harbor, and in a section which is sure of rapid advancement. It is within a few minutes' walk of street cars and of Clarendon Hills Station, furnishing excellent train service.

Water, Sewer, Gas and Electricity will be available as soon as demand warrants.

We are Owners, not Agents.

Our Warrantee Deeds are backed by the entire resources of a Corporation that has not a foot of its land encumbered by mortgage.

You will make no mistake in visiting the location and comparing with others before purchasing elsewhere.

Our auto will call for you by appointment or you can take Washington St. Electrics at Forest Hills and get off at Beech street, which leads directly to the land.

A LITTLE AND—A LOT

But a very little amount of money is required to own a beautiful home site in the new development known as "Page Lot" in flourishing Norwood.

Property is of high elevation overlooking beautiful country miles around.

"Page Lot" development is in the North End, the exclusive residential section of Norwood located between Washington and Prospect streets.

Norwood's industries are prosperous, its business fast growing, its population rapidly increasing. Tremendous building operations now underway to care for this growth.

1925 will be Norwood's biggest and busiest. Property values will grow.

The purchase of a home site at "Page Lot" is the beginning of profits for owners if bought now while cheap. Time will make money for you here.
